being driven off your chump by programs that crash?! Well, rest easy, me hearties, because the answer could very well have arrived in the shape of the Load-It Data Recorder. It's produced by the Nottinghambased Mills Computer Products Ltd, and, boy, does it have some pretty wazzy features! Tape heads out of alignment (a common fault that prevents many tape recorder from functioning efficiently)? Well, now you don't need to poke screw drivers into your machine's innards, 'cos the Load-It's only got a blimmin' head alignment adjustment knob! It's also got a LED light system to show you the optimum loading signal. Cor! Skateboards? Thing of the past!

Spook Fashion Tip No 1

Do you get loads of those little balls of material all over your jumpers when you pull them out of the wash? You do? Well then, here's our simple YS 'bobble' solution. Don your pullover and tuck it in so that it's pulled taut. Then borrow a Bic razor off your Dad and very lightly shave off all the offending fluffy bits. You may get a friend to help you with this, especially when it comes to your back! And hey Presto! Your clothes will look as good as new (Sweeney Todd barber pals permitting)!

So what's in vogue in computer hardware circles at the mo? Only the SAM Coupé, that's what! Latest news gleaned from the PC Show is that many of the big companies will be giving the new machine their support! The first of the major leaguers to do so include Domark, the Codies (hurrah!) and US Gold, who apparently will be coding a version of its Megagame Strider for SAM. But what more can we tell you about these scrummy little bits of software? Well, um, not a lot. Strider's being done by Tiertex, we know that much, and shouldn't cost any more on the SAM than yer average Speccy game (£9.99-ish). Quality-wise the finished games should be a sort of cross between the Speccy versions and something approaching the ST (or whatever). More news as and when..!

Dynasty Wars — the coin-op sensation  -t swept the nation — is set for a Speccy conversion. US Gold (of course) says that this epic tale of samurais, medieval horsemen and other Far Eastern skulduggerers will be ready around Easter next year, though how the sweeping horseback charges and cast of thousands will fit into 48K is anybody's guess...

* Escape From The Planet Of The Robot Monsters!! What a title! Eagle-eyed arcade freaks will have spotted the cartoony Tengen coinop around and about, which means the Domark conversion can't be too far away, can it? And indeed it isn't. Quite when this isometric 3D scrolling blaster will appear next year hasn't been announced (if you can't imagine what that is, remember Ultimate's Knightlore or the first Batman game), but judging by the coin-op it should work well on the Speccy. It's got that home computer 'look 'n' feel' to it, don't you know.

• After six months of silence, Thalamus is getting ready to release a batch of new product throughout the coming year. First up comes The Search For Sharla which'll be followed by Mindroll — Quedex USA, a labyrinthine ten level puzzle game (£9.99 cassette, £14.99 disk), and then the Spectrum version of Armalyte, the C64 shoot-'em-up hit, later in the year.

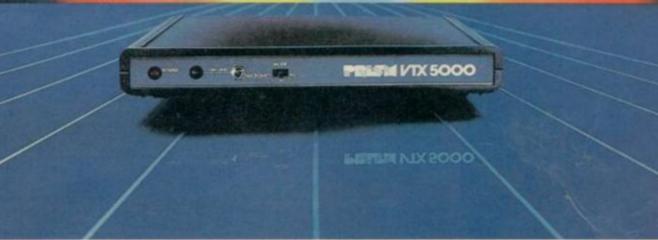

And finally, as they say, rumours (as yet unconfirmed) are sweeping the industry that — gasp! — the infamous Whistlin' Rick Wilson may record another fab 'n' groovy 'waxing' before the year is out! Blimey! A nation holds its breath...

ITS A MUST

SMASH TAPE NO24 WONDERBOY/ Activision

SuperWonderboy is out any minute, but to get you in the mood we've got the original Wonderboy here to give away!! Free!! (Well, virtually!) Hurrah! It really is a wonderful little game.

It really is a wonderful little game. We'd forgotten exactly how fab 'n' groovy it is 'til we loaded it up again — and then just couldn't put it down. As you must remember, Wonderboy was one of the most famous and massive of Sega's coin-op hits, and it's equally brill on the Speccy.

You play the tiny tot hero — clad in the snazziest of leopardskin pervbreeks (It's called a nappy. Ed) — on a quest to rescue your kidnapped 'chick'. It's a simple, serviceable platform-and-ladders plot, but behind it lurks one of the neatest-ever variations on that old fave, the running/climbing/jumping-about-a-bit/standing still/shooting things sort of game.

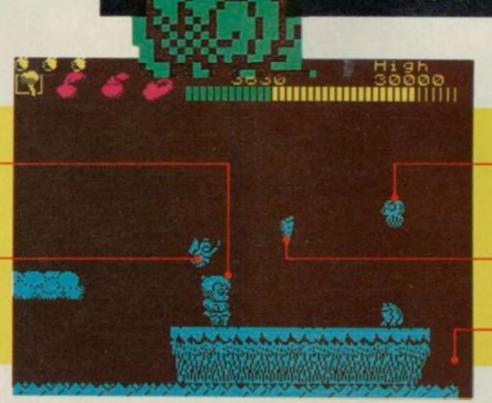

Your girlie's trapped somewhere at the other end of the jungle, but to get to her you're going to have to make your way across bottomless caverns, past nasty animals and cope with all sorts of natural and un-natural hazards. There are snakes, killer bees, snails, octopuses, deadly plants and a whole host of other critters to stomp on, as well as absolutely tons of (energy giving) fruit to eat!! Tricky stuff, but luckily there are pick-upable weapons, like throwable axes, invulnerability-giving fairies and even snake-crushing skateboards hidden in the massive egg things along the way, which should give you a fighting chance! Need a bit of extra speed? Then try pressing fire while you're moving. It gives you that bit of extra 'oomph' to your jumping ability too.

Wonderboy is made up of loads of areas and sub areas (like Super Mario Brothers and New Zealand Story) so it'll take absolutely ages to fight your way to the end. It's clear and cute, dead easy to get into but hard to finish, and probably the best Smash Tape giveaway since, ooh, Batty! What more could you possibly want?

This is you, Wonderboy.
Ain't ya cute? Just watch the way you run, with your little legs jabbering away like nobody's business, but your body staying rock steady and still. Obviously a fashion leader with those napples, too.

Inside weird egg- shaped rocks there are some lurking goodies! Is it an inexhaustible stream of throwing axes? Or a fairy to make you invulnerable?

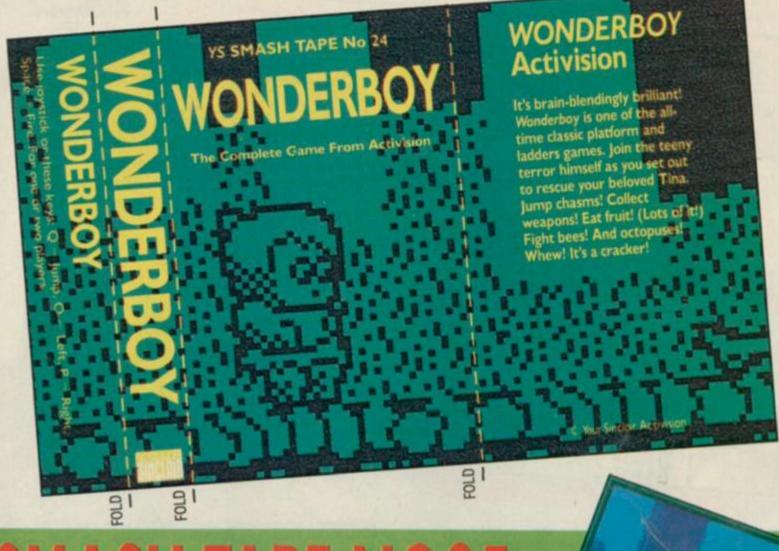

This is a baddle. (Boo! Hiss!) There are snall things, jumping octopus things, bee things, scary walking doll things, horrible frog things, whirlwind things, in fact all sorts of thing things. Shoo, so on, shoo!

Ah, fruit. Lots of lovely fruit. Honestly, Wonderboy eats so much of the stuff he'll turn into one if he's not careful! (Still, it gives lovely points and energy, so it's not to be sniffed at.)

 This is a big hole! Don't fall down it (or you're dead).

14 SECOND ANNUAL DO

TAPE SPECIAL!

'HING!

That's you - the funny little chappie in the middle with the big nose. There's your ball floating next to you, but what's that spooky face doing?? Doesn't look very friendly, does he? Better nip through the door behind you sharpish!

RIDING THE RAPIDS

Dodge the rocks! Slip through the time gates! Avoid the choppy bits! And when you can do all that, design your own course so it all gets harder. Blimey!

The Thing is a galactic post creature, on a mission to deliver the mail to a chap called the Dingalinger Overlord and thus prevent all-out thermonuclear war. The 'mail' takes the form of a metallic ball creature with squishy innards, which the Overlord is going to have to do a spot of negotiating with. But before this ball creature will agree to meeting the slightly-loopy Dingalinger he insists the Thing perform a series of tasks.

That's what you have to do then — control the Thing as he makes his way around 26 levels, collecting and then matching up objects. Vicious Dingalinger thugs try to prevent him completing his task, while teleport phone booths and the ball's rather nifty ability to turn into a high-tech servocannon go some way towards helping him out. Pretty backgrounds, smooth scrolling and a seriously cute and fluffy central character make Thing! a very appealing game indeed (which is hardly surprising since it was coded by Joe Blade creator Colin Swinbourne).

To load: Type in LOAD""(Enter). If you've got a 128K Spectrum, you should first select 48K BASIC.

Controls: Keyboard or joystick. Use left and right controls to move around the planet. Press fire to operate the cannon weapon contained in the ball. To complete a task collect two or more objects (found hidden in capsules on the planet surface) and use them together. But be careful! Use the wrong ones and you could be in trouble!

DING THE RAPIDS

Riding The Rapids is a canoe race game, featuring all sorts of obstacles like rocks, islands and sand banks to complicate matters. There are four courses of white water action, in each of which you must negotiate a series of poles, always leaving them to the right. Miss a pole and you'll receive a five second penalty. Miss a gate and you lose a big two seconds. Capsize and you'll have to paddle frantically in all directions to right yourself. An added extra level makes it possible to design and alter your own courses, adding rocks, rapids and other hazards wherever you want.

To load: LOAD""(Enter). In 128K press LOADER OPTION.

Controls: Joystick or keyboard. Left = Q; Right = P; Forward = O;

When your arsenal of weapons starts to run low, various icons will suddenly appear in nooks and crannies on the screen. Blast 'em for the following extra goodies.

LASER SIGHT

There's only a piddly one pixel cursor on your gunsight to begin with. Shoot the laser sight icon to get yourself a much more workable laser sight which'll last you for the rest of the level.

BODY ARMOUR

Grab yourself one of these dead trendy combo jackets and you'll reduce your damage rating by half for the rest of the level.

MAGAZINES

You start off with five magazines — Your Sinclair, ZERO... (What? Ed)... er... rifle magazines, that is, each containing 40 bullets. But at the rate you get through the ammo they soon run out. Look out for the magazine icon when this happens 'cos it'll increase your already formidable arsenal.

GRENADES

GRENAADE!!! You start off with three grenades at the beginning of the game, but if you shoot one of these babies it's grenades amundo!

POWER DRINK

Bottoms up! Wet your whistle with this little tipple and your injury level plummets.

SHELL BOX

This is like a goodie box for mercenaries. It's stuffed full of extra magazines and grenades – and they all come gift wrapped. Blammo!

CAT

You'll probably have the RSPCA on to you after this, but shoot a cat and one of the pick-me-up icons (except for the laser sight and the medical box) will appear at random. Go on. kill a kitty today. (You're fired! Animal Lover Ed)

Ocean/£9.99 cassette/£14.99 disk

Jackie It's big, it's mean, and it's as tough as my granny's sponge cake. What is it? Only Operation Thunderbolt, the most eagerly awaited shoot-'em-up sequel since...um...the second series of Moonlighting. And is it a corker or what?

Similar in plot to its big brother Operation Wolf, your mission in Thunderbolt is, of course, to rescue the hostages. This time round though there are eight levels ahead of you (or nine if you count the final hostage scene), the baddies are bigger and lougher and more numerous than before, and you also get the option of taking a chum along into the fray with you if you want — cos just like the arcade version, this game has a spanky two player option.

As in Wolf, you begin the game armed with a complete energy level, an Uzi, five magazines and three grenades. The aim of the game is to shoot everything in sight. But, pumping away at the fire button, it's difficult to suss out exactly where you're firing at first, 'cos in Thunderboll there's no large cross hair à la Wolf. Instead the only sight you have for your gun is a one pixel cursor which gives you a minimal idea of where your shots are falling. You can lose a few shots to get the feel of your weapon (oo-er), but your best bet is to keep your eyes peeled for the laser sight icon which appears near the beginning of every level. This'll give you a laser sight on your gun for the rest of the level. Not as big as the Oppo Wolf cross hair, but still very handy. Once you've sussed out the firing system it's Once you've sussed out the firing system it's down to business. On each level you have to take out a certain number of baddies, tanks, dinghies and helicopters in order to move on. Unfortunately, though, you only have a limited amount of ammowith which to do this, but there are extras to be found. Keep your eyes peeled for the following icons – body armour, which'll reduce your damage level by half for the rest of the level, extra ammo, in the form of magazines, grenades and shell boxes, and a power drink and medicine box which'll revitalise damaged energy supplies. Cats (of the bewhiskered variety) are also unlikely providers of extra weaponry and energy.

Your first task is to make your way down a terrorist-infested road towards a church where a spy with vital information is hiding out. Blammol The first screenful of baddies hits you like a kick in the teeth. 'Cos unlike Wolf with its left/right scrolling (but just like the arcade game)

Thunderbolf opens up with an into-the-screen scrolling level and a barrage of big, big baddies leaping out of the screen towards you, unleashing a veritable half of bullets, grenades, rockets, knives and helicopters. Blasting your way down the road takes some doing. The terrorists can be dispatched with one bullet, but the helicopters need a lot more shots before they can be destroyed. But waste your quota of baddies and make it to the church without sustaining too much damage, and it's on to Level Two.

Level Eight is yet another front view scene. This time you are inside the plane where the terrorists have taken refuge. Pick off the terrorists without shooting the passengers already onboard. As in the hostage levels, lose a passenger and your energy level will drop. Get this far (and it'll take some doing, that's I'sure) and there's just one more task to complete. The pilot of the plane has been taken hostage by the terrorist leader. You must take careful aim before trying to kill the dodging terrorist without harming the pilot. Rescue the pilot and you complete the mission and end the game. Lose the pilot though and it becomes impossible to fly the plane, so the game's over. Aww, and just as you were doing so well too.

Operation Thunderbolt is one of the most slickly programmed games I've seen in a long time. It's fast, smoothly scrolling and a blast a minute. The basic game may be much the same as Operation Walf, but with Thunderbolf's longer length, bigger and more numerous sprites, varied scrolling, extra final showdown shoot-out and two player option to boot, it's more than worth shelling out for. Go get a copy now.

A brilliant shoot-'em-up with enough variation from the original to stand as a separate megablast all in its own right.

JOYSTICK JUGGLERS

Matt 'Matty' Bielby Mysteriously relieved of his swo powers. Matt has taken to performing outrageously dangerous stunts in a bid for recognition. "I'm just popping out," quoth the former swoonsome the other day. "I may be some time." Next thing we heard was a commotion from the street. There we was balanced on a high wire, juggling three Russian dwarf hamsters!

Jack 'Meadowlark' Ryan No sooner had we discovered Jackie's lifetime ambition - to be an international basketball star - than her hopes were cruelly dashed. She was rejected by the Harlem Globetrotters selection committee, despite dashing the entire length of the court, speedily nipping in and out of the legs of the opposing team. Still, the committee said they would keep her on Duncan Bovril Body MacDonald Yep, Dunc is back? You thought he was going, we thought he was going, he thought he was going, and guess what he went. Quietly, silently, and sort of stealthily, at six o'clock. Then, as if by magic, next morning at nine, he spookily returned. Weird or what??

Marcus 'Out On His Ear' Berkmann The resident YS flyboy has come unstuck! He's been unceremoniously booted out of the RAF after an unauthorised wing walking stunt at 20,000 feet Although disappointed by the Court Martial decision, he does have plans for a new future. "I'm thinking of launching a new low cost trans-Atlantic arrline I think a 15 gold return flight to New York should bring in the punters." he told us.

David Wooley Wilson Fresh back from his Outer Hebrides tour. we asked Whistlin' how it had gone. "Brilliant." he retorted. I had about 4,000 at every venue! "But surely that figure exceeds the total number of islanders!? "People!?" said the baffled young cropner. "I mean sheep! They've a finely honed musical ear, you

Kati 'Itchy Feet' Hamza Yep, the 'New Girl' is back. It appears she got a new job as a plasterer, but got bored after a week, and set up her own snail farming business. "Yes, it's the most profitable form of farming there is !" she enthused. "Do you think! could get to review some French software? Maybe I could get some good snail import contacts." Himmin

Richard 'Rich' Pelley Rich Pelley's dramatic career rise continues space, from former Ready Brek packer, through Spectacular fanzine, and now on to the hallowed pages of YS What is the secret of his near legendary success? "Well, I never ever eat anything bigger than my head," he offered. "I wouldn't touch, I wouldn't look at it!" Anything else? "Bribes?" Ah!

Robin 'Honest Rob' Alway Introducing Robin, or Mr Money as he's known in the YS office. He's never short of a scheme to turn a fast buck. Why, only this month, our Jack has been buying up the Alway-patented Instant Growth Syrup as if there's no tomorrow Mind you, the only instant growth we've witnessed has been the phenomenal swelling of Robin's bank account.

Yo, Ed dude! Like, after some major distance in time, Hacker finally appeared through my mail box. Like, totally wild and gnarly, huhl? Give my thanks to Gary Shepardson! You're one gnarly, wild and crazy guy! Oh yeah, and less of the apologising, Mr Ide - at least I got a copy! And guess what else arrived today? (Like, I dunno, man! Ed) Go on, no clues, just like, have a guess! (Like, I totally don't know, man!! Ed) Yes, that's right, an incredibly large overdose of the pollutant tarts. Now, moan about that, onechild-only-Greenpeace, or whoever you is! Oh, by the way, The Cowboy has got the total hots for Emma 'The Squaw' Norton, though he denies it! Like, byeee for now!

Psi 45 Bradford

PS Kick ass, 49ers.

PPS Your Sinclair is just the wildest, gnarliest, totally awesome mag in the relative dimension.

PPPS That's it, I'm totalled.

Like, er, it's real gnarly that you got Hacker at last, man, and... er, consider your gratitude passed on. Erm, gag me with a spoon, and... er... barf out! Ed Dude.

Frankly, I haven't got the slightest idea what the pair of you are wittering on about! T'zer.

COR BLIMEY! DO THEY MEAN US?

I am writing to thank you for the amazing Dream Warriors that was on a recent YS Smash Tape. It has to be the best free game ever! The playable demo was also brill. The reviews and features are the best of all the mags, the compos are amazing! Well done, YS!

Derek and James Kilmarnock

I can't wait 'til James has a male offspring, 'cos then you can sign yourselves Derek, James and Son, and the title I gave your letter would make sense. Do they mean us? They surely do!!?! Ed.

HAYELP!

Could anyone help me out of my dilemma? I recently bought my disabled sister a Spectrum

SAY NO MOWER, SQUIRE!

Speaking as a pro mower, I would like to offer my services to endorse Gardensoft's sequel to the incredible Advanced Lawn Mower Simulator as given away free on your Smash Tape No 21. I think the sequel should feature my own personal favourite, the Mountfield Turbocut 3.2L with sunroof and fluffy dice, as well as, possibly, a 'trying to start the damn thing' sub-game (perhaps a joystick waggler? Oo-er!), I will endorse the product, and also playtest it for accuracy. So come on Gardensoft, Martin Graaskov's Pro Mow should be a sure-fire hit!

PS My dad is Danish, hence the strange name.

It's not very surprising that grass cutting is your forte, with a name like Graaskov! As for endorsing Gardensoft's sequel, looks like you'll have to wait! Gardensoft tells me that its main programmers have been loaned to its parent company. Greenhousesaft to work on a new project, Advanced Fuchsia Growing Simulator. Three games may help alleviate the tedium of your profession! Ed.

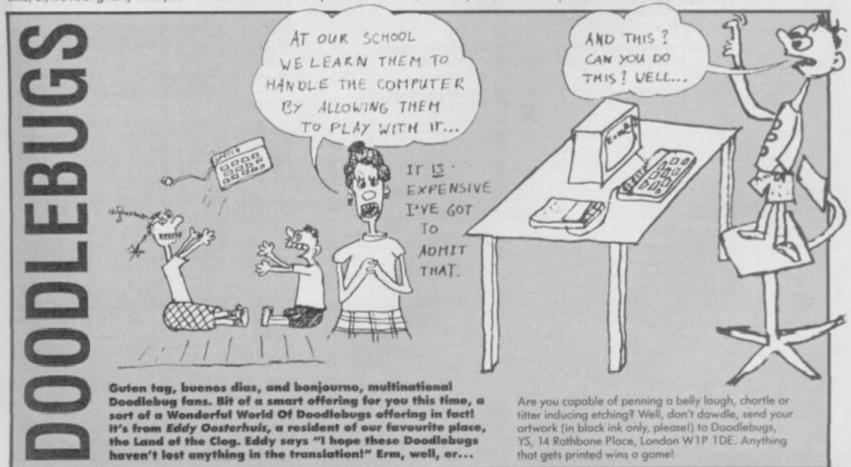

128K+. She was over the moon with this, and we set it up and attempted to load our games. However, after many wasted hours and tears on my sister's part, she has just about given up.

I have tried to obtain a manual for her, but to no avail. Does anyone out there have a Speccy 128K+ manual they could spare, or else duplicate for us? If so, please contact the address below.

We've printed your full address, so hopefully some kind soul will be able to help you out. What about it, readers? Ed.

CRISPY BAKED OR HALF BAKED?

Stick it in the oven for a few mos, and Bob's your uncle! (Eh? What's he on about? Ed) Here's one I prepared earlier... Yes, as luck would have it, I have produced the world's first CBB that's Crisp Bag Badges for all you dumb-dumbs out there! Snazz up your jumper! Dosh up your coat! Wear a different flavour every day!

Thomas Vanner Lisburn, N Ireland

Er, very useful, two shrunken crisp packets, erm... but they're a tad undercooked for my liking. Ed. Oh, I don't know about that. Scoffle! Munch! Munch! Snouty.

YS VS AUSSIE SOAP

I am writing to you to say that I'm grounded for ages, and the only things to do are either to watch Home And Away or read YS. Quite obviously, I have been spending a lot of time reading YSI Not only am I grounded, but I'm not allowed to use my Speccy or watch TV in my bedroom, or spend my money. So in other words, I might not be able to get the next issue of YS.

Anyway, I've never won anything from Your Sinclair, not even a book on trains! (Not that I want one!) So please send me a badgel

Ian Williams Treharris, Mid Glamorgan

Since you've obviously committed a very serious crime, I mean serious enough to ban you from getting a copy of YS, I don't think you deserve a YS badge, do you? Well, alright, I suppose missing YS for a month is more punishment than any mere mortal deserves! Ed.

STOP IT!

What gives with all the remarks about the Commodore 641? Some of us do own more than one computer, you know! I am certain that if you were truthful you would admit that the CBM 64 has the edge over the Speccy (colour, sound, memory, to mention a few). So stop all the remarks about the Commodore or I will tell everyone what your friends used to call you at school

R Richards Nottingham

The Commodore better than the Speccy? You must be off your chump, chum, but please don't tell everyone what they used to call me at school! Ed. Go on, write in and tell us all what they used to call Matt at schooll T'zer.

TAPE TRAVELS

It's amazing how a YS Cover Tape can get to Yan Hards in deepest darkest Africa (issue 39) and not to someone in New Zealand! Is someone nicking them on entry to Godzone? Also, can you do something about getting the mags here sooner, as the latest issue around is May'sl?

Marc English Christchurch, New Zealand

Hmm, we had heard from another Kiwi that some NZ distributors were removing tapes and stamping 'Not Available In New Zealand' on the cover. I don't know if this is the case, but the tapes should have been there. However, in future, because of this and other problems, only subscribers' issues will have the free tapes. So, basically, git yerself a subscription, cobber, that way you'd be sure of getting the free tapes, and of getting your issues a lot cheaper and sooner. Happy Easter to all our Kiwi readers who don't have a subscription! Ed.

ERM, THE POETRY BIT

YS is cool, Like you don't buy it, You'll be a fool.

YS is skill. As jampacked as Rhyl. (Eh? Ed) The chances of unsatisfaction, Are absolutely nil. So amazing are the Smash Tapes. More juicy than sour grapes, Playable enough for even mad apes Doesn't cost too much bread. It boosts your street cred, The greatest mag in the world,

Scott 'Renegade Mad' Brennan Dundee

Thanks a lot, Scott, For your wonderful rhyme, I would have printed the rest, But I didn't have time. I'm sure that I'm correct, To say you like 'free verse'. I spotted this from the fact, Your last line doesn't rhyme! Ed.

KINDLY LEAVE THE STAGE

Hello there! It's time for the YS Gong Show again, and here's the first contestant, Jim Wellman from London. Take it away, Jimmy... A monkey was trained to eat with a fork in a laboratory. eal with a fork in a laboratory.

He called the fork his fourpoint tool. One night he escaped back to the jungle and took the fork with him.
However, it went missing.
So the monkey went to the hippo and said "Have you seen my four-point tool?" and the hippo said "No".
Then the monkey went to

Then the monkey went to the giraffe and said "Have you seen my four-point tool?" and the giraffe said "No".

Finally the monkey went up to the jaguar and said "Have you seen my four-point tool?" and the jaguar said "Yes, I've eaten it!" and the monkey said "Why?" and the reply came back (Wait for it Fd) back (Wait for it ... Ed) "Because I'm a four-point tool-eater Jaguar!"

Gongl (Never mind the gong, he should be shot! Ed)

Mega-groan!! Can you beat the YS gong? If you fancy your chances, send your jokes to Kindly Leave the Stage, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. A gleaming YS badge goes to the writer of every joke printed!

TRAINSPOTTER AWARD

A SHREWD READER WRITES ...

It looks like you've boobed againl Page 49, July 1989, Win A Day Shark Fishing Compo. The picture is of someone holding a shark and the caption reads "That's not a fish, it's a flaming shark!" So what do you think a shark is, a mammal!!?!? I hereby claim my Trainspotter Award.

Andrew Goulthorp Nelson, Lancashire

You're wrong, matey, so nerl A shark is a small, long, snouted mammal that spends most of its time in subterranean burrows and runways and ... Ed. That's a shrew. T'zer. lives on ... er... pardon? Ed.

That's a shrew you're talking about T'zer.

Erm, okay you can have one. Ed.

YS GETS MY GOAT

In Dr B's Clinic in the October issue, under Back To Skool, I'm the one who sent in the answer to Andrew Tullock's gamesnag but Dr B called me Andrew Whittakerl Oi, Marcus, the name is ANTHONY Whittaker!

Get it right next time - and don't call me a goat! You do, and I'll come up and luzz a frog up your trouser leg!

Anthony Whittaker Newbury, Berks

Oil There'll be no 'luzzing of frogs up trouser legs' in this office! Ed. (Sound FX: Luzz! Squiffle! Croak! Skrungle! Croak!) Agargh! No! Gerrof! Heee-heeeagargh! Ed. He hehl T'zer.

CLOT

I must congratulate YS on being the most brilliant mag out! Your brilliant Smash Tapes like Movie and Dustin leave other mags standing. My favourite bits are the Letters page and the National Rescue strip. The one bad thing is that I'm claiming a Trainspotters Award. In the June issue, in the Pssst section, under the heading Tune Into Radio YS, you put that you were on the air on the 21st and 28th of May. Since May comes before June, how could we listen to it?!?

Paul Riley Bolton

PS Just realised you publish the mag half a month earlier than the cover month itself! Silly me. Can I have a Trainspotter for spotting a mistake in my own letter pleasel?

No. Ed.

MEGA-BISH (EH?)

What's happened this time? I was looking through my back issues of YS when I discovered in the July issue a mega-bish with Dragon Ninja and Total Eclipse. You had written Dragon Ninja Part 2, which is wrong because there hasn't been Part 11 And instead of Total Eclipse Part 2, you had just written Total Eclipse I think because of this mistake I should get a Trainspotter.

Thomas Hodge Bradfield, Berkshire

What's a mega-bish? Ed.

SMALL PRINT

I hate it when you say 'clot', so stop it or I'll have to kill you!

Mark 'The Mean Man' Renwick Morpeth, Northumberland Blimey! Ed. Clott T'zer.

I think T'zer needs braces. Stephen Graham Northern Ireland

I think my trousers are held up quite adequately by my belt, thank you very much! T'zer.

So much for Elvis Presley being dead. I reckon he is still alive and has just taken the pseudonym of Davey Wilson

Darren 'King Of The Wheelie Bins' Rawley Farnham, Surrey

Hmmm, we wondered why he sported those ridiculous side burns! What have you got to say for yourself, Davey? Ed. It's one for the money, two for the show... Davey. Shut up! T'zer.

Oh, and loads of PSs, as you may still have a chance of getting a bit of it in Small Print.

Steve "I Know How To Get A Letter Printed In YS" Smith Salisbury

That's what you think! Ed.

My favourite word is 'snoogle'! Stephen Fields Solihull, West Midlands Oh yeah? Well, snaagle off! Ed. That wasn't very nice, especially after he sent us those scratch 'n' sniff Garfield stickers! T'zer. Sozi Ed.

HANDY HOUSEHOLD HINTS NO 26

Hands up all of you out there with a rubber-keyed Speccy or Speccy +?

That many? Handy tip if you start to get keyboard troubles (ie some keys don't or only partially work!). First UNPLUG YOUR SPEC, then undo the screws on the case. Remove the top part of the case slowly - very slowly in the case of the 48K+ because it has a reset switch. Now, you will see two wide plastic strips going into two upright interfaces (plastic things which stick upright for the non-technically minded). Pull out the plastic strips from the interfaces and look at them.

If the gold lines on the strips are faded and worn where the plastic curls over into the interface, or the plug is a bit worn, then this is the cause of your problem. (If the gold lines are not worn out then reassemble the Speccy and send it off to the repair shop!)

To set things right, simply pull off the thick plastic plugs at the bottom, then cut the worn ends off with a pair of scissors, leaving nice solid strips to stick the plastic plugs back on to (making sure you stick them back on the way they came off!). Now simply plug the strips back in, reassemble, and then try out your handiwork. If it doesn't work, then you've probably got the plastic bits which strengthen the strips on the wrong way round. Unplug the power again, take the Spec apart, and make sure that the gold strips are touching the pins and that the plugs are not obscuring them. Oh, and on the Speccy + there are two plastic strip holders at the back. Undo these before even startinal

Michael Carter St Ives, Cambs

Well, that sounds straightforward. The cable ribbons of which you speak are more likely to wear at the 'plug' end, but if wear appears in the middle (where the ribbon is folded to fit inside the Spec) then cutting is not recommended 'cos the ribbons (plastic strips) will be too short for you to reassemble your machine! If you do feel brave enough to look inside your machine, always make sure the power is OFFI Also if your machine is new, and you poke about inside it, you'll risk invalidating the guarantee. Ed.

BRUV TRUBB

Help! I'm really down the dumper! It's my brother, y'see! Whenever! turn my back he mutilates my copies of YS. The only thing to cheer me up would be some software. (Hint hint!) Viva YS!

Gordon Quinlan Clonakilty, Eire

Lordy, your bro certainly sounds a mite strangel Normally I would be inclined to stress the joys of brotherly love and comradeship. However, since he's mutilating your YS collection, I think drastic measures are called for! By purchasing a second copy of YS you would be able to take the cover from the spare copy and stick it on to your Dad's latest House And Garden (or whichever mag your Dad enjoys). When your brother mutilates this, he'll be on to a dashed good hiding, I'll wager! Ed.

Dear Madame Pico. I am very confused! You see, my parents, who I trust implicitly, have always maintained that babies come from the cabbage patch. However, of late I have been told a most disturbing and very different version of events by my Biology teacher! I know it is very wrong to doubt the word of one's peers, but someone must be telling porkies! Is it my Mum and Dad or is it Mr Tidmarsh?

Confused Reigate

My, my, 'Confused', don't get yourself into such as state. I myself was also deeply shocked when I discovered that bables come from cabbage patches. It must be so cold for them, the poor dears. Consider the implications of someone who was not a keen gardener and left their cabbage patch untended. The infant could be out there for ages before being discovered. And it wouldn't be a sweet child at all but a scruffy little urchin completely devoid of social graces. Perhaps that is why there are so many rather rude people around, like the ruffian I encountered on the Number 2 bus last Tuesday evening, Anyway, I think your Mr Tidmarsh should be writing to me, and not you!

Dear Madame Pico, Please help me! I have just finished my GCSE exams and everyone keeps telling me that I should have some idea of the career I would like to aim for I know what I'd like to do, but nobody will take me seriously. Basically, the only job that I want is to be Captain Fishface. You know, that cheery, bearded chap sailing about the Caribbean, eating only the finest cod steaks, and singing hearty sea shanties at the drop of a hat. Can you advise me because my Careers Teacher is obviously inept?

Tom Staines Dunstable

Well, Tom, luvvey, what romantic aspirations you have stirring in that young breast of yours. I think, bowever, that you should perhaps be a little more realistic. I mean, you couldn't expect to be Captain Fishface straight away. now could you? I expect you would have to work your way up. Do you have a good singing voice? Maybe you could join a local Gilbert and Sullivan society and convince them to stage a production of HMS Pinafore. Also getting used to sea travel could be quite bandy. I mean, all the finest cod steaks in the world won't do you any good if you baven't got your 'sea legs'. Perhaps some practice on the local boating lake could stand you in good stead.

I don't understand why the people try to prove that himself is a great deal depending that the rivals are a fiasco! Really I think Your Sinclair is great, but C also.

In my country we have an ancient proverb "In the land of blinds the one-eyed is king", that minds that if the other side is bad then I'm good, and it's not true!! (Maybe I'm better but still I'm bad.) But if the rival is good but I'm better than he, then I'm really great.

C* is a very good magazine, then YS is the best mag!

Javier Segura K

Erm, yes, er... I think I know where you're coming from, and you're absolutely right... I think. Ed.

Hello, I'm a boy of Gijón (Spain). I write for you in Spanish because "I don't write very well the English. Hola, estoy encantado de saludaros y para felicitaros por vuestra maravillosa revista de Spectrum. Yo soy un devoto de los ordenadores y de las revistas do ordenadores sobre todo las de vuestro pais que son 'guays'. Solo les peñiria por el precio de la revista en España es de £2.95. The price of YS in Spain is £2.95. It's very expensive. Great! I want your magazine! Goodbye, see you again.

Erm. ¡Ostras! Muchísimas gracias por tu photo pero ¿qué exactamente estás haciendo? Bueno la mejor solución para asegurar que tu YS sea una verdadera ganga es muy sencilla: ¡abonate a nuestraa revista! Ed.

SAN coupé

SO WHY DO SPECCY SAN coupé? OWNERS NEED THE

You've been building up your Spectrum software collection for years. You want a computer with better sound, better graphics, more power - but you don't want to lose your software.

The Coupé is the computer for you. Four screen modes with a choice from 128 colours, a six-channel stereo sound chip, 256K RAM (expandable to 512K) - yet by actually slowing the Coupé down, we allow most of your 48K Spectrum software to run in the Coupé's level 1 mode.

Growth

You never stand still with a computer. You're always learning, always growing, always wanting to do more. With the Coupé, your computer can grow with Memory can be expanded from 256K to 512K. One or two 1 MB disk drives can be added. There are output ports for almost everything we can think of, and an expansion connector for things that other people develop later. And all of it simply slots in - no screws, no soldering, no hardware expertise.

Graphics

See the full range of 128 colours on an ordinary TV set. Or better still, use a video monitor for really high definition. Best of all, use a modern TV with SCART to get the quality of a monitor on an ordinary TV set.

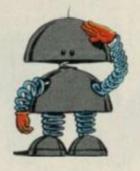

The Coupé has four graphics modes. Even at the lowest level - Spectrum emulation - you can change the colours in the the software to take full advantage of the palette. In modes 3 and 4, you can display up to 16 colours per line, a different colour for every pixel in a 256 x 192 pixel display; or have an 80-column 512 x 192 display for word processing and spreadsheets.

And free with the Coupé comes FLASH!, a software package by ace Swedish programmer, Bo Jangeborg, designed to give you total control over these powerful graphics.

Music

There won't be a better buy for all you aspiring electronic musicians. The Coupé features a full implementation of MIDI - MIDI In, Out and Through with 16 channel capability, and MGT is promoting a full range of MIDI support software. Better still, the Coupé features an 8 octave, 6 channel stereo sound chip. For sensational sound effects, just plug in your headphones. Play it again SAM!

SAM. No, the computer's not called SAM, it's called the Coupé. This is SAM - he's the character who will guide you through the manual.

A 72 key full-sized, full travel Keyboard, designed with a professional feel. The keys are "soft", allowing you to re-program and re-position them if you wish. On the right, there are 10 function keys, which double as a numeric keypad.

The basic model of the Coupé comes ready to work with software loaded from a standard cassette recorder. But you can also add one or two 1 MB 3.5" Disk Drives. These are ultra-slimline drives from Citizen in a special case which allows you simply to slot them in when you're ready.

The Coupé's slot-in disk drive

AS A atter of FACT

The Coupé will run most of your 48K (but not your 128K) software. Which titles? Ask the MGT Customer Care people.

And guess what? You can even change all the colours in your current games.

Watch out too for the brand-new Coupédedicated releases from US Gold, Codemasters, Activision...and the list is growing.

Where can you get the SAM Coupé? Well there'll be some in the shops before Christmas. Call the Customer Care department and they'll tell you where to go and what to do.

This is the basic model, and you can add on - just as soon as you're ready:

1 or 2 Disk Drives

An extra 256K of memory

Special communications interfaces - RS232 and parallel

The MGT Mouse

And MUCH MUCH MORE.....

Win! Twenty Copies Of Operation Thunderbolt And Ten Ocean T-Shirts!!

What's It All About Then?

Operation Thunderbolt — it's a game and a half, and no mistake! You probably know everything there is to know about it already. What d'you mean, no? Where've you been? Basically, it's an updated, two player version of Op Wolf with added 3D bits. Shoot all the terrorists and, um, that's it, sort of thing. And, as if you need telling, it's going to be mega!!

What You Win!

A Sony Discman! What a nifty little piece of gear this is! We thought it was so good when we last gave one away that we went out and got another! And now we're giving that one away too! Lumme!

It comes with a pair of headphones, repeat function, AMS search and a built-in display for the track number, amongst other whizzo features. You can also use it in your car (if you've got one) and even hitch it up to a pair of proper speakers at home (if you want)!

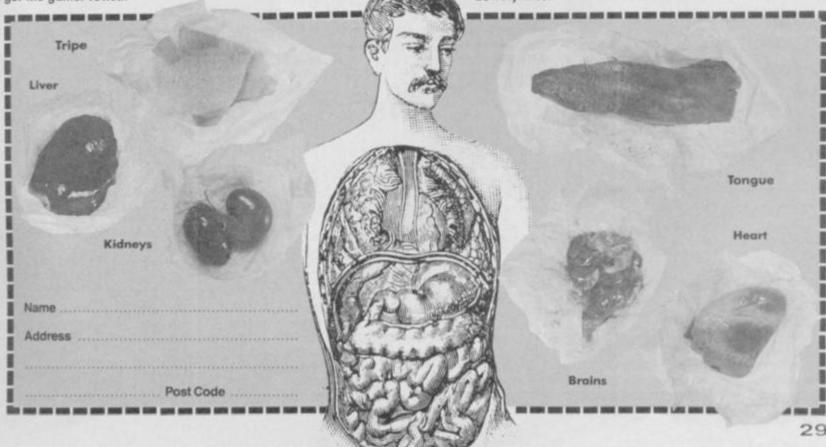

Runners up won't go home disappointed though. The first ten will all get a copy of Ocean's ultra-violent Op Thunderbolt and a wazzy Ocean T-shirt. And the next ten after that will just get the game. Yowsa!

What Do I Have To Do?

A-ha! This is the tricky bit! How many famous operations can you think of? There's Operation Wolf (the game), of course, then there's Operation Overlord (the planned Nazi invasion of Britain or something) and then there's, um, ...'Operation - The Crazy Doctor's Game'! David used to play it as a nipper and he's a big fan! So here's Operation — The Crazy YS Doctor's Compo!!

What you have to do is this. You see before you a picture of the human body, and next to it there's a set of internal organs and things. Now draw a line linking each part of the body with the place you — with your skill and judgement — think that bodily organ should reside. So, if you think tripe belongs somewhere near the noggin draw a line linking them up. Simple, innit? Then cut out the picture and coupon around the dotted line, add your name and address, bundle it in an envelope and address it to Operation — The Crazy YS Doctor's Compo, Your Sinclair, PO Box 1509, Enfield, Middlesex EN1 1LQ. Make sure it arrives before the end of the year though (December 31st) or the patient'll go critical!

- Any Dennis Publishing or Ocean Software types who dare enter this compo will live to regret it!
- · All entries received after 31st December 1989 will be consigned to the 'Entries Which Arrived Too Late' dumper.
 - Don't argue with the Ed's decision on this one it wouldn't be very wise!

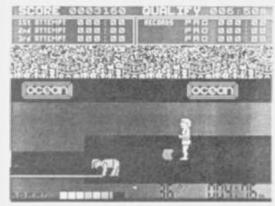

GOING DOWN

Another trip to the netherworld of cheapies with Mr Stingebucket himself, Marcus Berkmann! (Where's that cheque? MB)

DALEY THOMPSON'S DECATHLON

Ocean/£2.99

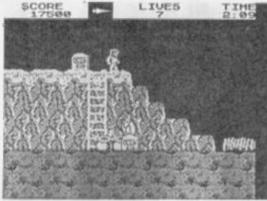

Back in 1985 when it first appeared, this was the business. Time, though, has been as cruel as ever, and now it looks a little seedy and well past its sell-by date. All the running events require simple waggling of the joystick - a craze amongst gamers during that period that must have seen off more sticks than a bonfire. Certainly, after Daley's Decath, you too feel as though you have been running and jumping and throwing things all day, and if you want unnaturally developed wrists, and huge pulsating muscles between your fingers, then go ahead by all means. For the long jump and the throwing events, it all comes down to achieving a launch at 45° (or as near as possible) and getting as close to the lines as possible. Pretty skilful, huh? No, the game is pretty impressive for a four years old, but has long been superseded by other games (many of them called Daley Thompson's...). For sport sim freaks only.

GHOSTS 'N' GOBLINS

Encore/£2.99

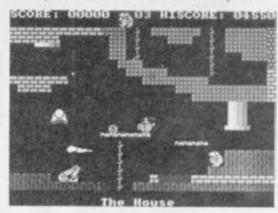

Oddly enough, I'd never played this before even though it was number one for about a year in '85 or '86. Like many games that have followed it, it's a multi-scroller in which the distance you cover depends upon how many nasties you can kill and how many unpleasant nasties and projectiles you can avoid. Sounds a bit snoresville, doesn't it? Well, I thought so too, as I started battling through the first level or so, but there is something strangely addictive about it all. It's not easy, by any means, but the learning curve is not outrageously steep, and you soon begin to realise what's what. Of course, it all looks a little dated now, and the graphics are plain, to say the least, but you still find yourself coming back to it - even when you've got other games to review, as I have. Zombies appear from underground (zap 'em), some carrying cauldrons (collect 'em). Watch out for vultures (zap 'em too) - in fact, shoot first and ask questions later, if at all. Good stuff - I think just one more go, or possibly two...

MONTY ON THE RUN

Kixx/£2.99

Another splendid old game, this time a true platform-and-ladders arcade adventure with loads of pixel-perfect joystick control and general frustration and hair-tearing. Monty has escaped from jail, only to find that on the outside there are loads more platforms and ladders to be negotiated. To get through the trillions of well designed and often fiendishly hard screens, Monty needs to choose five items (from a large selection) for his Freedom Kit', and anyone who keeps their old copies of YS should find a list of the right things to choose somewhere in an old Clinic (it's a regular request). Both the graphics and gameplay are streets ahead of the Jet Set Willy blueprint, upon which most of these games were originally based, and perhaps Monty's greatest challenge is to get past the coal crushers — white and grey whatnots that crush anything beneath them. Trouble is, unlike everything else in the game, they're completely random, and it can be impossible to avoid being splatted. Some bits too require an awful lot of thought — on balance I'd say it's harder than Wanted: Monty Mole or Auf Wiedersehen Monty. And now here it is for £2.99. Worra bargain!

THUNDERCATS"

Encore/£2.99

A not dissimilar game to G 'n'G, but substantially less interesting. True, the graphics are lovely — including some very neat digitised backgrounds — but the gameplay, which essentially involves hitting everything you see with a giant sword, is mundane going on breathtakingly tedious. Naturally, to make up for this, the characters are all called things like MUMM-RA" and BI-CEP", and that's because it's all based on Thundercats" the cartoon, the comic, the T-shirt and the wibbly thing on legs. But, as we all know from past experience, a cracking licence does not often a good game make, and Thundercats" is no exception. Do you realise we gave this a Megagame last time round? What were we thinking of?

ENDURO RACER

The Hit Squad/£2.99

Ah, this is much more like it. There are no flies on Enduro Racer when it comes to good clean racing fun. For once, a racing game concentrates on gameplay rather than on number of tracks or prettiness of backgrounds, and although we're in strict

CRYSTAL CASTLES

Kixx/£2.99
An excellent game, which for some reason that long ago escaped me was never properly released by US Gold. Although previewed to the press in 1986 or '87, it appeared only on a long-forgotten compilation a year or so later (with a couple of real stinkers). But now it's available in its own right and at a very nice price indeed. The idea's straightforward enough. Your little trear (called Bentley for no less obscurp reusions) is just crazy about gemans so much se little he's willing n be immobilised for a short time if you mp over them. Gem Eating Centipedes nich, er, eat gems, and so on). And, well, at's it — but try dragging yourself away om the keyboard, that's all. It's viciously lefective, a sort of high-speed. ric games. And don't be fooled by ner primitive presentation and graphics — this is as swift a game hat you usually get if there's more than one sprite on the screen. If playability's the inal criterion, this is as good a game as ou'll get – definitely worth a Megagame.

monochrome here you'll play no more atmospheric and effective a burn-'em-up. It's fast, exciting and its five tracks come with a full complement of hazards - massive rocks that do more than stop you in your tracks, fences that need to be jumped over, huge dips and peaks in the road that stop you seeing what comes next. And for once the programmers have actually discovered what collision detection entails - there are none of those awkward I-wasn't-even-close crashes that budget titles especially are so fond of. A real cracker, and highly recommended, even if it has appeared on 56,000 compilations already.

PAPERBOY

Encore/£2.99

Another huge Elite game of a few years back, although in this case I could never really see what all the fuss was about. As the paperboy you cycle through your neighbourhood (which conveniently takes the form of a very straight road, with houses on only one side) and deliver your papers by bunging them at the letterboxes (conveniently labelled 'SUN' - is that the paper they all take?). Get the paper in and you get 250 points — fail and the household will cancel its subscription. You need to avoid the sort of hazards that cassette inlay notes always describe as 'hilarious' - to whit, tramps, geezers on motorbikes, hydrants, cars, and anything else spriteshaped. There are also some hampershaped things to be picked up for extra points, and you can have fun by breaking windows of people who aren't your customers. Quite a wheeze, and indeed this game has sold over 100,000 copies worldwide on various formats. Nowadays, though, it does look a bit dated - after all, it's so old that on initial release there was even an Electron version. Quite neatly put together, but overrated.

SUPERKID

Atlantis/£1.99

Someone told me a little while ago that whereas most full price games are slaved over, nurtured and tweaked and tinkered with for months by teams of dedicated programmers working round the clock, most new budget games are knocked off in about half an hour with loads of old routines simply ripped off full price games and adjusted accordingly. As it was someone who works for a full price game company who told me that I didn't pay too much attention, but after playing Superkid I'm not too sure. Not that it's a bad game - in fact it's highly playable (if a little limited) but it does look like rather a lot of games that we've seen before. You're the usual urban warrior (shucks) who has to rescue luscious young lovelies stuck on rooftops (yahay!) and guide pensioners home through the streets after a hard day's complaining (zzzz). Unarmed, you can nevertheless fly through the air with the greatest of ease, which helps when you want to bump off the nasties (landing on them is a good trick). Once you've cleaned up the city's three areas in daylight, you return in twilight when the gangs get even more vicious, nasty, unpleasant and cruel to small furry animals

All this is quite a laff, as long as you aren't expecting anything worrying like originality or innovation. At least, though, you have the option of playing the game in full colour or, if that's too much for the eyes, in any of four different single colours. But while it's fun, it's second hand fun at best, and that may not be enough for many Spec-chums.

MASK

Byte Back/£2.99

'At last" says the screen message as you load in the game, but you may not necessarily feel quite so relieved when you have played the actual game. Based, naturellement, on the comic/cartoon series/ toy range/fruit yogurt (with real fruit chunks), it's one of those imitating games that promises much and delivers virtually nothing. On each of four levels there are two MASK agents to be rescued, and you, the ridiculously named Matt Trakker, have a tank in which to do it. This means trolling around the designated area picking up security keys, four of which (and only the correct four) will activate a scanner, a useful little gizmo that shows you the way to the missing agent. Another nice scenario, but once again control of your tank is less than smooth, and the massive number of opposing tanks and aeroplanes - all out to get you with an admirable singlemindedness - changes what could have been an interesting challenge to a mere shoot-'em-up with knobs on. There's little to keep you going, so not surprisingly you stop. Not one of Gremlin's best.

Kati Zut alors! Imagine un peu de Gauntlet, addez une dash de PacMan avec une sprinkling liberal de Ms PacMan, throw in some frog's legs, a couple of escargots, a touch of garlic et there we 'ave it - Puffy's

But enough of this franglais banter. Back to ye plaine olde Englishe and ye game in hande. Just in case anyone didn't catch the rather obvious hint in the first paragraph, Puffy's Saga is a maze game. And a cute and cuddly maze game at that

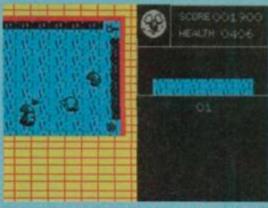

Pulyn is a smiling-faced, open-mouthed, PacMan-shaped sort of monochrome being with a big bow on her head who looks just like her boyfriend Puffy — 'cept Puffy's had his bow surgically removed. Somehow, for reasons that shall remain nameless (like, erm, no-one's thought of them yet), our two globular chums have managed to get themselves imprisoned in the middle of a dungeon somewhere. Now you, as one or other of the circular couple, have to help them munch their

Top of the menu come dots. There's a specific number hidden on each aerially-viewed level and eating all of them sproings you instantly up to the next maze. As per usual, there's a load of meanies and monsters lurking blimmin' everywhere, waiting to bleed our disc-shaped hero's energy dry. They

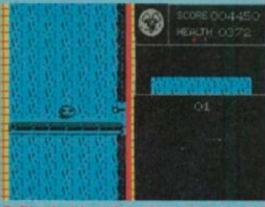

If I could just get to that steak round the corner. . . Aaargh! Too late!

Pill-popping Puffy packs a powerful pen-gun

Ouf! Locked door. Now where did I leave that blimmin' key!?

range from the fairly harmless sort to great stonking dragons with pointy teeth and little black leeches who latch on to you and knock off 90 energy points. So shooting the blighters comes top of your list. Some of them even have the very useful side effect of turning into energy-giving Puffy-sized steaks.

If you've seen Gauntlet (if you haven't, you, erm, haven't) you'll know what to expect - keys to locked doors, bonus food, magic floors, transporters, supershots, temporary levitation, invisibility, invincibility, the lot. Not only that, if you feel the urge (oo-er), you can go around collecting a selection of magic goms (goms?) which give you the power to call up a map of the level or breathe fire in particularly tricky, monster-ridden spots. One rather spanky little feature is that Puffy and Pufyn have different abilities. Puffy's stronger so he doesn't need to pop so many pills to stay alive but Putyn's a quicker, much more slippery customer so she's harder to catch. Cute, huh?

Cute, in fact, is definitely the operative word

Cute, in fact, is definitely the operative word because the Puffies boast a whole selection of rubbery facial expressions. For extra syrupy cuteness factor, they even manage to talk. Puffy shouts "Yum" and even structures to a sort of crackly giggle in plenous Speccy sound.

As for the gameplay, I you liked Gauntlet or PacMania, you'll probably squeeze more than a couple of chuckles out of this. If doesn't have quite as many features as Gauntlet and, apart from the main characters, the graphics aren't exactly among the most corkendous ever to appear in a maze. the most corkendous ever to appear in a maze game. But it's good, squeaky-clean fun all the same. If maze-munchers are your 'thang', go for it before you run out of puffy (groan).

Infogrames/£9.99 cass/£14.99

Dunc Now, the way I see it is that there are two different types of people — 'normal people' and 'really, really, really WEIRD people'. Due to some quirk in plate tectonics, over the last few hundred million years (during the shifting of the continents), there is a certain country which has ended up with more than its fair share of the latter category (the 'really really weilth). category (the 'really, really, really WEIRD people'). Do you want to know which country I'm talking about? No? Oh well, I'll just give you a clue then - it's FRANCE. (That wasn't much of a clue, Ed)

Remember Captain Blood? That was pretty odd. wasn't it? What do you mean, "No"? It was odd — really odd. And this game, the follow-up to Captain Blood, is even odder. Blimey, that's quite a large chunk of weirdness, so I suppose you want to know something about it. The trouble is that this 'weirdness' is slightly infectious, so I'd better get cracking before it starts to devour me — here goes.

There is one 'special' day of the year for the inhabitants of Saturn. It's quite a strange day — even by French standards. The day is known as Purple Saturn Day, for the simple reason that on that particular day the planet turns GREEN. (Purple actually. Ed) On this day, folk from all around the Solar System (and beyond) gather to indulge in some 'sports'. And that's what this game is all about. There are four sports in all, and different competitors to choose from (all of whom have differing skills). Yes, it's Galactic Games time, so let's have a look at the different competitions. . .

The Ring Pursuit
This takes place around Saturn. And basically it's a cross between a stalom race and an avoid-'em-up. You, keeping the left hand side of your space-ship pointing towards Saturn, have to circumnavigate the planet while doing two things — a) weaving in and out of 'market buoys' and b) avoiding the myriad asteroids and bits of space junk that come hurtling at you (you're in the 'rings' of the planet, you see). There are two speeds you can travel at — stationary, and very, very (very) fast. The idea is to stationary, and very, very (very) fast. The idea is to stay ahead of your opponent (obviously), but if he does get in front of you you can always dip your ship out of the asteroid belt, catch him up in safety, and then zip back into the action again — mind you, you don't score any 'much needed' points when doing this.

The Tronic Slider Test

You and your opponent are on a football pitch type, erm, pitch. (Well, it's flat, anyway.) Both of you are in pursuit of an 'energy ball', and, as the ships are on anti-gravity tracks, you can both perform 180' turns with ease. Which is lucky. Because you need to. The idea is to get the ball, shoot it with your laser, and then collect the pieces it leaves behind. laser, and then collect the pieces it leaves behind (by 'driving' over them). This is a goal. As the game progresses, obstacles appear on the pitch which, as you can imagine, make things a tad more difficult.

The Brain Bowler

This is the 'strategy' game of the quartet, and blinking tricky it is too. You control an electroball (as does your opponent). Both competitors are standing on a 'computer brain' (him on one side, you on the other). You have to fire your electroball at various components in this 'brain' in order to toggle things 'on' or 'off'. The idea is to charge up six chips on your side of the bonce, but the trouble is that you can have loggled things beautifully and be nearly within 'striking distance' of a win when your opponent toggles something on his side and undoes all your good work. You've got to be a quick thinker for this one. This is the 'strategy' game of the quartet, and

The Time Jump Blimey, this is a weird one. (They all are. Ed) It seems a bit useless, as well — the aim is to jump as far as possible into the future. The way you do this is to aim a crosshair over sparks which traverse the screen. This you must do three times, which will fuel a gravity-catapult which il fire you through time and space. (You see stars and stuff coming towards you.) Erm, and that's it. Or that seems to be it, anyway. I think you're meant to be 'rewarded' with a picture of a 'chick' or something, but I never saw

And there you have it. Very bizarre. Apparently, if you do really well in all the games, you get to engage in an on-screen snogging session with one of the more desirable specimens of the female population of Saturn. Cooper! I found, however, that I'd probably never reach this stage — mainly because I didn't find Purple Saturn Day playable or addictive enough to continue with for any length of time. The Brain Bowler is probably the best game here — but I'm useless at 10 type games, as I'm thicker than a Californian Redwood. No snogging sessions with a sultry Saturnine sextress for me then. (Mind you, you do get to see her engaging in tongue sarnies with the other participants.) Oh dear, the weirdness of the game is suddenly starting to affect me. Blik blik blood. Hello, Auntie Herbert, may I have my balls back please, isn't it? Ping! Wikky wikky woo! Yink yink yink yink yink yink (That's enough 'yinks'. Ed).

Ladies and gentlemen, live from the Acacia Ballroom, Walthamstow, it's Phil South and his amazingly splendiferous, walkin', talkin' Tipshop, staaaarrrring... YOU! (Yeehoo!)

OOT! Hey, it's Tipshop No 48! Good grief, makes me feel an old man. But where can I get one at this time of day? Honk! Anyway, enough of this Police Squad-type nonsense. It's 48 months old, so soon it'll be 50. (Yeah, so what? Ed) So, I'll make it a special edition or summink. Whaddaya say, Ed? (Aw, alright. Ed) Thass ma boy.

It's been a funny old month since I saw you last. All the cold weather is upon us, and the fierce Caribbean summer is but a memory (sigh). Yet soon there'll be 'deep and crisp and even' snows to trudge through (trudge trudge) and hot soup by roaring fires to savour (slurp crackle). Yes, yuletide is nigh upon us. But don't you go thinking I'm gonna be dressed in red, hopping down people's chimneys this year. Uh-uh. I did that before and kept getting stuck. No, I've decided my winter mode of employment will be something less taxing. How about a gnome on a yule log? (But you might get eaten. Ed) Oh shoot, I forgot about that. Any Both DD Guy and Jonathan Gilbert have written to share with us a little solution they both have. Seems they know more about Times Of Lore than anyone on the entire EARTH!

Coo. How's about that then, Tip-Nippers? Super lovely smashing. Would you like to tell us then, boys?

"Yes, we sure would. And here we go.

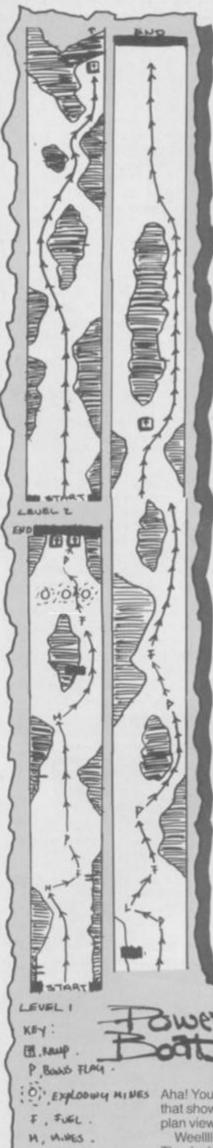

QUEST ONE - THE FORETELLING STONES Accept the prior's quest and go north into the dark forest. Leave the path and when you get to the lake, go north into the forest to the orc camp. Don't panic!!! There is only one route, though it doesn't look like it. When you get to the camp, kill the orc by the fire, take the urn and return it to the prior.

QUEST TWO - THE TABLET

Go to the castle in Eralan, talk to the regent, then go to Ganestor to get the tablet. In Ganestor, go into the cellar of the pub and press the button on the top right hand corner. Go down the stairs and you're in the castle. Go up one floor. Use the red scroll (if you have it) to kill the guard protecting the tablet. Take the tablet and say to it "High King". The tablet will then tell you to kill the High King's assassin in Lankwell.

QUEST THREE - THE BLACK

Go to Lankwell. Ask the thug in the pub about assassins and then ask the man who knows about the black asp. Go to the black asp's house across the bridge, south east of Lankwell. Then go back to Ganestor with his confession and give it to the warden on the top floor of the castle.

QUEST FOUR - THE SPYING GUARD

Hendric, the warden, tells you to find out about a spy in the castle. Go down to the ground floor and talk to all the guards until you find the one who says "No-one will pass this point" Wait until nightfall and then say to him "Spying". And then kill him. Give the note that the guard leaves to the warden.

QUEST FIVE - THE IMPRISONED PRINCE The warden will then tell you to free his son, who is imprisoned in Hampton. Go to the castle east of Hampton. Kill the guards and take the key. Unlock the prisoner. Take the green scroll from downstairs.

Go to the archmage who lives across the bridge north of the enchanted forest. Go to the pub between Eralan and Hampton. Talk to the stargazer until you get the keyword 'Holy Water'. Go to Ryder by using the green scroll. Buy the holy water from Friar Kaine. Go back to the pub and walk directly south until you get to the ruins. Enter the ruined temple and kill the lyche with the holy water. Finding the lyche is trial and error. Look everywhere and try every lever.

QUEST SEVEN - THE CRATER Go back to the archmage and get the white key off him. Go to the crater east of the road to Lankwell. This is exactly the same concept as the lyche's temple, but much harder. Trial and error again is the only way. Don't use the magical axe in the crater and temple as the slime will rust it. Pick up the chime and leave.

QUEST EIGHT - THE MEDALLION OF POWER Go to the temple of Angor and use the chime at the door. Go upstairs and kill the prior. Take his key. Go downstairs and find the button. Go down into the basement. Unlock the prisoner. Go back up to the first floor and pick up the sphere under the bed. Go in front of the grey

O' Explosing MINES Aha! You know how I lurve those little maps that show you how to get around those plan view racing games like Spy Hunter?

Weelll... I do, and here's another one. They're brill, see? 'Cos you can see what's coming up along the way, which in this case could save you a lot of hassle. Cheers, David Cassiday. You'd find that name a lot funnier if you'd watched children's TV in the 70s.

NINJA MASTER

Jonathan Minton couldn't get past the bit where you have to chop the log. Know the trouble, Jon-Boy, I have problems with my logs too. Fortunately both Paul Bainbridge and Derek Stuart have a nifty little cheatette which makes even the most stubborn tree trunk seem like the feeblest twig. When you're selecting your keys for this level, use the Enter key again. Then when it's log time, press (one guess here) Enter and if it works you should score about 2,300. Neat, huh?

MOVIE

Big snags on this a month or so ago, with both the Ellesmere Port Elf and FV Harper in serious sewage. Fortunately my old mucker Richard Swann has come up with the goods, and how. So, snag by snag...

1. How do you move the suits of armour blocking the doors? Is there a password — and if so, what is it? "Well, the suit of armour near the start can be shifted by saying "OPEN SESAME". Is the one to the left of the southern alley a bit harder? Well, not really. All you have to do is put an object between you and it and push it out of the way. The one up the top of the map with the two balls (ooer) can be got past by saying "PUZZLE"."

Can you get through the walled-up door? "No, the walled-up door takes no part in the game at all."

 Can you get into safes? If so, how?
 To get into a safe, stand well back and throw a bomb at it.

4. How do you tell Tanya from Vanya?
"There is a way of telling the twins apart.
When you find a girl, say "FRIEND OR FOE?" If she says "KILL KILL KILL", she's Vanya. If she says "THAT IS BEYOND
ME", she's Tanya,"

As for the Ell's question — what do you do with the thingy in the church? "The so-called 'thingy' doesn't seem to do much, and you don't need it." Thanks very much, Richard.

BACK TO SKOOL

Actually, Richard's been a bit of a brick this month, as his complete solution to Back To Skool has been not a little helpful in solving Michael Williams' probs. (Three games to you, M Swann!)

Q: What is the combination for the bike chained to the conker tree?

A: When you have found the water pistol, fill the cups underneath the stairs in the boy's school. (What with, Richard? What with? Dr B) (Shut up. Ed) To get the code, stand so that your head is just below the first floor's floor. On the shelf where the cups are you'll find two ledges. When a teacher is about to pass under one of these, fire the cataputt. When you have all four numbers, write them down on the blackboard and the bike will unlock.

Q: What is the combination for the Science Lab storeroom?

A: Do the same as for the bike, but fill the cups with sherry.

Shall we call this Dr Swann's Clinic? (Yes. You're fired. Ed)

Phewl Got my job back (the Ed and I go back a long way — and fortunately I've kept the negatives). Now to Andy Robbins' problem with this rubbishy old game. "Can someone please tell me how to set explosives, dissipate red dust through the air purification plant and escape using the craft?" Yup, the Ellesmere Port Elf can...

"No probs, matey. To set an explosive go on to the communiputer and press the symbol that looks like a lightning bolt. Then type in the first four numbers that are on the display above your score (using the block of right-handed symbols—two by three) and press the lightning key again. The formula for the red dust is broken down in the various labs and must be taken to the air punification plant. To get past security doors press the bottom left computer button to see the code, then try and get it all the same by using the right handed numeric buttons on the communiputer. They do the following (listed left to right, top to bottom). Change first and sixth (dig it), first and fifth, second and fourth and sixth, first and fourth, second and sixth, second and third. That should help him, I think!"

I hope so, Elf — personally, I don't know what on earth you're drivelling on about. But thanx all the same.

MASTERS OF THE UNIVERSE

Jon Minton's snagette ("How do you get the last object?") prompted a letter from Clinician Andy Harris. So what do you do, Andrew?

"Get chord one from the cemetery. Get chord two. Get to the scrapyard before 6.30 and defeat Blade and Karg to get chord three. Get to the store before 4.30 and kill 70 ghosts to get chord four. Get chords five and six, then go to the rooftops. Get in your space disc, kill the enemies to get chord seven, and fight Skeletor to complete and win the game."

Phewl Sounds hectic. And if you don't manage it?

"Get stuffed"

Ta. (And thanks also to Stephen Cole.)

NIGEL MANSELL'S GRAND PRIX

Mark Young, as you may remember, couldn't qualify for the Spanish Grand Prix — and, it seems from my mailbag, neither can anyone else. I think we have to assume that this is a particularly silly bug. Unless, of course, you know better...

HAYLP

Rob Gaffney: "I have a problem regarding WEC Le Mans. Every time I finish Level One the game restarts from the beginning instead of going to Level Two. As you can imagine, this makes the game rather hard to complete. Has anyone else had this problem?"

Kev 'Ace' Maplesden: "Is there anything you can say to the parrot in Movie that gets you a helpful reply?"

Tim Bairstow: "How do you get Caspar the key in Knightmare? And what do you need to cast spells?"

Andrew Jones (the New Zealand betsman? I think not): "In Scube Kidz how do you get past the third reef? I always run out of air."

Right, that's it for this month. Sorry, but we'll have to hold the Magic Knight special over to next month, but in the meantime, if you have any snags of your own, or can solve any of these, write to Dr B's Clinic, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. Anyone printed (ouch) wins a badge!

prior and use the sphere. Then pick up the medallion. You then load in some more groovy graphics and that's it. You've finished."

Unbelievable! I thought we'd never get there. What a relief. Super.

Red Heat

Hah! I thought this film was soooo brilliant. All that swearing and gunplay, JUST the sort of thing to watch with your granny over a nice cuppa tea. Anyway, I think Arnie's skill, and I don't mind the game either, just like Lee Bryce, Stephen Wheel and John Cooper. Take it away, comrades.

"Don't use the punches, they're too slow. Walk back and forwards and the enemy won't hit you. Go as far left as you can and head-butt until you knock a few down. Duck when the karate jobbies come on. If nowt happens when you get a B icon, be careful of a snowstorm. On Level Two just punch. Don't shoot the bandaged guys.

LOOK UNKMED. ARMED MEN TAKE LESS PUNCHES

On the subgames, do like this:

CRUSHING STONE
Just keep in rhythm. It doesn't have to be very fast, but it does have to be in time.

THE KEY
This is colour coded but you must be fast.

DOOR GAME

This one's easy. Keep your cool and it's only left, fire, right and fire. Don't shoot the little bloke with the pram, the dog, the topless woman and innocent things. Shoot the guys with the guns before they shoot you.

THE DOLLAR BILL
This is a bit complicated, but keep your calm and watch your time.

Nice one, comrades.
"Technologee-a-deprad-veeeta" as we say in Russia. Which is either a sort of dessert, or thanx very much.

Vatman

Yup, it's another Smash Tape tip. It's funny, you know, I get almost as many tips for these games we do on the covers as I do for real full-price games. (They ARE real full-price games! Ed) Okay, I know that, but they are free! (Oh, alright then. Ed) So without much more ado, here's Marc 'Ginge' Holliday.

"Wait 'til the chaps are well clear of the grannies before you hit them. Stay roughly near the beginning. Don't collect energy pills 'til the end, 'cos you need all the energy you have for the knifeman. When you've killed the 200th enemy, travel right, collecting energy pills as you go, then kill the knifeman."

Hmm. Got red hair have we, Marc? Hah. Thought so. Thanx for the tips anyroad.

Blob Cop

We've had some complaints that not enough girlies write in to Your Sinclair, so to scotch the rumours that real women don't use Speccies, here's the slim and sexy Jennifer Simpkins. (I don't really know if she's slim and sexy, but it sounds good, and who knows, she might be?!)

Gosh. A girlie in Tipshop, and making rude jokes too! Blimmin' Ada. Thanx, Jenny. How's about some more tips from you, hmm? Kissy kissy? (Yuk, I hate it when he gets all slobbery like that. Put it away, Snout. Ed) (Yeah, before I cut it of!! Jenny) Gulp.

Batmantherie

What? A tip for Batty already? Well, yes, 'cos what we've actually got here is a hint courtesy of Philip Klernan. Take it away, Phil...

"I found a def cheat which I presume also works on the real finished game. You'll have to print this because it's great, y'know. It saves the player going to places he/she would normally have to go to but which normally waste about 30 seconds. Here's the cheat.

On the chemical factory level, walk right past the ladder, swing up, go right, avoid the drops, jump down to the platform below, walk over to the brick wall on your right and stand as close as you can to it, facing right. Swing directly upwards to the platform just above, then turn to the left without moving in that direction. Now swing the Batrope diagonally left and keep your finger on the Up key. Immediately, you should be whisked right up to a platform. This will save you about 30 secs. Otherwise, never go up and down ladders - it's a waste of time. Swing up or jump down. You're Batman, for goodness sake!"

Thanx, Phil. Your badge is in the post, Batperson. Any more tips for the game will be gratefully received, by the by.

Ahhh, good old Green Bert. I've really missed ol' Bert in the Worra close-run thing it was this month for the TOTM. It was very nearly Thunderbirds, y'know But, at the last minute, I got all steamy-eyed about all those 007 tips I'd gotten. Hah! And so here they are, from my li'l old chums David White, Paul McGuigan, Alexander Kingham, Curtis Halsord, Malcom Begg, Mike Walters and Ronald 'Robocop' Graham. So get those watch cameras out, all you secret agents. Shhh. Sorry, better not mention secret agents. Well, you never know who's listening.

"STAGE ONE

Pull down diagonally left and shoot the four gun emplacements. Next move to the bottom middle of the screen and shoot at Sanchez's jeep. When you have passed the tall building on the right, move right and shoot the gun. Stay at the back and shoot the second gun when you have passed the wall. Move forward a bit and shoot the two guns which are next to each other, whilst dodging the wall. Go on to the road and fly forward. Stay on the road and dodge enemy fire. Shoot at the jeep when it is in sight. To avoid damage, slow down when a gun fires at you. At the first crossroads move left staying on the road and shoot the gun. Get back to the middle of the road quick. Go forward. At the second crossroads, move left staying on the road and shoot the two guns. Move back into the middle of the road and move to the top of the screen. Dodge enemy fire. Pull back quick when you get to the end of the road.

STAGE TWO

This stage changes every time you play it, but the idea is to choose a man to shoot, get in a safe place, line your sight up at the right angle to hit him, then move forward and fire. Do this with every man. Don't waste ammunition. Always pick up magazines. The enemy's shots are quite slow so you can dodge them. If you have already got three magazines, and some shots, waste the shots and pick up the magazine. This way you have more bullets. Shoot the oil drums to blow up men. After you have completed the game once, not all of the oil drums will blow up.

STAGE THREE

Keep firing and guide James to the back of Sanchez's plane.

STAGE FOUR

Only go underwater when James is about to be hit by bullets, and when he gets a harpoon off a diver. Do this by firing when he is on top of you. Guide James under divers to get the harpoon, dodge the boats and collect the drugs.

STAGE FIVE

Push forward to get up to full speed with your tanker. Tap your stick or key backwards,

so you get near the bottom end

TIPO'THE MONTH

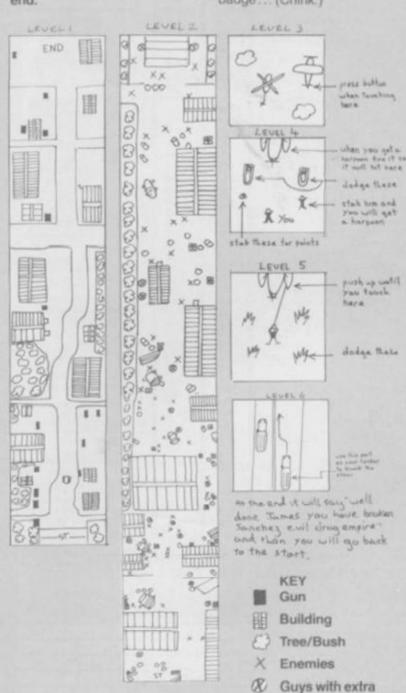

When you have a harpoon, line James' right arm up with the right hand float on the plane and fire. You will now be pulled along by the plane. Push forward and dodge the boats and rocks. When you catch up with the plane this stage will end.

of the screen while still travelling at top speed. Move to the left of the road but don't hit the side. When the tanker comes on let it get just in front of you then move right and up to get past it. Don't hit the side of the road. When you're past the tanker, hit its cab with the back of your tanker 'til it blows up. There are five tankers, and the fifth one is Sanchez's. He may fire stinger missiles. Dodge them."

And now a map from Malcolm Begg. Thanx, Malc.

And there you have it. Brillo skillos. I like your style, worthy of Mr Bond himself. Take a badge... (Chink.)

Tipshop, y'know. He was one of the best running tips I ever had. This was in the old days, when that Hex Loader fellow used to run things, remember that? But now, it's been re-released! Yee hoo. So now a million and one other people will send tips for it in to me. Azowie! And the first of these is John Anderson.

"Okay, Bert, off we go...

ARMED MEN

These are deadly as they pop up from nowhere, so, when you see one, lay on the ground and stab at its feet by moving left/ right on the ground. You don't get splatted by the fatties.

JUMPING FATTIES Jump and stab in their direction diagonally.

RUNNING FATTIES

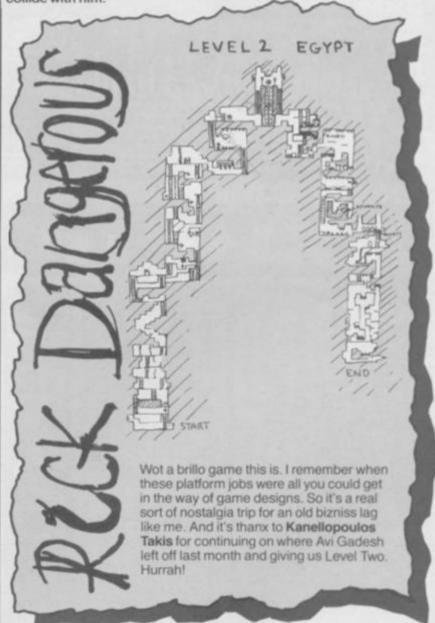

Just walk as normal and stab early, because otherwise they'll just run straight through you. On the bottom level don't jump if there's a bloke above or you'll collide with him.

GROUND BOMBS Do not try to jump these because you might not make it and run straight into a fat flying kicking bloke. So take the safe way up the ladder.

GENERAL TIPS

On the opening level, stab the men with the headbands as they'll give you a flamethrower. Don't use this until the end of the level where the truck pulls up. Use it when the nearest attacking man gets close to you and throws it. It'll go through a load of 'em. If you don't, you'll still have a couple left. And by the way, the coolest controls are Left=O, Right=P, Up=Q, Down=A, Stab=SPACE and Shoot=ENTER."

Coo. Aren't you just the Arnie of Essex, eh? Remind me not to meet you in a dark alley, all this stabbing an' stuff. Yowch! Nice tip though. BADGE MONITOR! Fling the badges over will ya...

Well, it has been nice, breaking bread with you all. But it's time to go, alas and alack, lawks and any other medieval saying I can come up with before the end of the page. But if you have any tips for the Shoppe, then dash them downe on a parchment and post them off, poste haste, to Philip Snoute, YS Tipshoppe, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. And remember, l'faith, that any we print in the Shoppe will get a YS badge with 'I Got Big Tips' on it. Prithy. Thass it. Bye!

be pleased to hear, it bears much more of a similarity to the former in concept and gameplay than the latter. Hurrah!

You take the role of the intrepid explorer trying to realise your dad's ambition, just like in The Last Crusade. Only whereas Indy's pop was obsessed by the Holy Grail, your dad's obsession was... Calvin Klein aftershave! Ho ho, only joshing, readers. No, what he really dreamt of finding was the fabled Elephants' Graveyard. The only thing was that on one of his expeditions he popped his clogs! So, being the loyal son, you venture forth to continue his work.

Like Last Ninja II, it's a sort of 3D scrolling arcade adventure. Unlike Ninja though, it has three multiload levels instead of six. But then again the backgrounds are all in colour this time and feature some nice touches, like the way your sprite is half obscured when he goes behind solid background details or up to his waist in water. It's a bit weird the way that you're also obscured by foreground detail, 'cos it means it's possible to get creamed by an Inca type with a big mallet without seeing what's going on! Still, the overall impression of the graphics is very good – these allow for exciting Indy-type can shoot. Get the picture? There are all sorts of beasties to be killed, including zombies (which creepily reassemble from piles of bones in front of your very eyes!), man-eating plants, and even bloomin' dinosaurs!

The best thing about it though is the way Tusker captures that certain 'je ne sais quoi' feeling (as the French would say) – that element in the Indy movies which made them so exciting and fun-packed. For me, it's the way Indy solves certain puzzles and overcomes problems using the unlikely objects to hand. This is what you have to do in Tusker. Present the right object (or combination of) at the right time and in the right place, and you'll get a clue to help you in your quest. There are loads of objects to be picked up, and these can be used to fulfil different purposes.

If, like me, you loved the Indiana Jones And The Last Crusade game, but bemoaned the fact that the problem solving and puzzle element of the movies was a bit lacking, then try Tusker for size. An arcade adventure with the emphasis on adventure, with some pretty spiffy graphics and a good many hours worth of puzzling. Mappers and tippers will be in their element!

Dinamic/£9.95 cass/£14.95 disk

Jackie Caramba! Now I know Dinamic likes its games hard. I mean Army Moves was a tad tricky. And Navy Moves an incy bit intricate. But Grand Prix Master, the latest game from our Spanish amigos? It's nearly flippin' impossible!

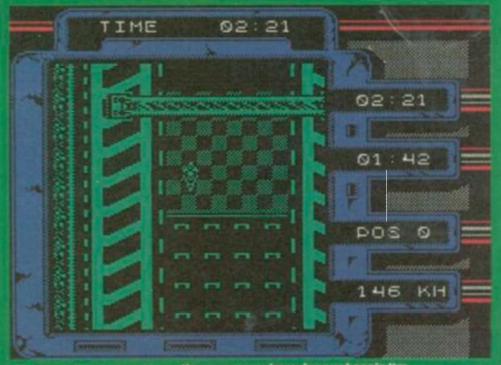

Grand Prix Master is a viewed-from-above, motor cycle racing game in which you find yourself taking part in the 80cc World Motor Cycle Racing Championship. It's a game of points-tables, racetracks and bikes that look like tadpoles in which you get to play the Spanish Motorcyle Champion Jorge Martinez 'Aspar' (there's no Barry Sheene here, matey). The aim of the game is to compete against the other motorcyclists in the championship in an attempt to win it. So zip up your leathers, sit astride and prepare to race.

The game begins at the start of the championship season. There are seven hair-raising tracks ahead of you and you must qualify and compete in each one, picking up enough points en route to become overall winner of the championship. You have but five bikes to your name, so make sure that you don't trash all of them before you reach, say, the third track. Mind you, trashing your bike before completing the championship will be the least of your worries, 'cos first you've got to do the almost impossible — qualify!

To do this, you must complete one lap of each circuit in the time given on the right hand side of the screen. This involves racing your bike around the empty viewed-from-above racetrack as quickly as possible and coming home before the given time. But it's easier said than done, race lains, 'cos the weird control system of this game means that it's very difficult to get anywhere last. The only controls you are given are up, down, left, right and brake. And to get your bike to zip along el gronto you have to steer it in the same direction as the on-screen scrolling. So if the track starts scrolling down screen, you must steer your bike downwards to maintain your speed and so on. Sounds reasonable enough, I hear you say, but if you stop pres

Here we are at Assen in Holland. On the left we have an overhead view of the whole course and on the right the impossibly fast lap record for that track. Can I beat it? Not on your nelly, chum.

And I'm off. As you can see, I'm on my own here, 'cos yet again I'm trying to qualify. The time I have to beat is on the left, but as ever I'm at least 20 seconds out. Oh well.

This tricky control system makes it very hard to qualify on any of the given tracks. And I found myself spending most of my time going round and round each circuit trying, and largely failing, to qualify for most of the actual races. I managed it once, on the Italian Grand Prix circuit at Imala. The race itself was actually quite fun, with all that jockeying for position and all. But generally, Grand Prix Master is so difficult to play that the whole aim of the game (to win!) becomes an impossible task because you never actually get to qualify for the races.

Obviously, our Speccy-loving Spanish cousins like their games hard, but since Grand Prix Master is graphically unastounding and near enough unplayable, I'd give it a miss if I were you — unless of course you're of Spanish descent. (But you are! Ed) Oh, yes. Oh well!

Taking the first bend on the Speed Track. It's pretty hairy I can tell you. But if I can get my speed down to 60 I reckon I should just about manage to squeeze round without skidding off the track.

Eeeeeeeooooooooowl Out of that bend and on into the first straight, pedal to the metal or what? The drawbridge that I'm just about to drive under is actually the very same one I'll have to jump over on the Stunt Track. Blimey. Looks a bit dicey, doesn't it?

Checkpoint Charlie approaching. Will I make it in time to get an extended play and then have a crack at the current Phantom Photon?

Hard Drivin', the Atari coin-op, was billed as 'the most realistic driving sim ever' when it first appeared in the arcades earlier this year. What with its totally mad stunt and speed tracks, its 'centre-feel steering with continuous force feedback' (um, which means it felt just like driving a real car, Spec-chums), its 3D graphics, its adjustable swivel seat, its accelerator, brake and clutch pedals, not to mention its four speed gear stick, it really was the business. If ever Duncan disappeared from the office during the day you could bet your last milk gum (I believe that are's mine actually. Champ. Ed) he'd be down the arcade having "just one more spin". The scamp.

Anyway, now this wonder of arcade machines is about to make an appearance on to our trusty. Speccies—courtesy of Domark, of course. So Matt sent me hot-foot over to Putney to take a pre-release gander at it. But hang on a minute, I thought (as I mirrored, indicated and manoeuvred around Hyde Park Corner), if the whole appeal of the arcade game was its realism, how's it going to fare when it's all squished down into our trusty little black boxes? The answer, I was pleased to find out, is surprisingly well.

You see, the appeal of the arcade machine was not only its realistic driving feel (which obviously can't be ported across to the Spectrum), but also its realistic multi-directional 3D, solid-filled vector graphics (which can). Usually in racing simulation games, like WEC Le Mans and OutRun, all the cars are two dimensional and hurtle along the road in only one direction i.e. forwards into the screen. But in Hard Drivin' things are different. All the cars are three dimensional. There you'll be, hurtling along at a fair rate of revs, when, neecooow, a solid-filled 3D lorry will suddenly appear in the oncoming lane. Nothing new about that, I hear you say After all, you got 3D oncoming traffic in Turbo Espirit and Fire And Forget. But was it as huge and realistic as this? Not on your nelly, chum. Just take a look at the Oncoming Traffic Box in the corner there if you don't believe me and at how the lorry in Hard Drivin' grows realistically bigger and bigger as it approaches you and almost fills the screen as it drives past. Berlimey. Have you ever seen anything like it? it drives past. Berlimey. Have you ever seen anything like it?

Not only does Hard Drivin' look graphically whizzo though, it also promises to be rather fast and very, very playable.

Just like in the arcades, you begin the game sitting behind the wheel of your Ferrari Testerossa. You view is through the windscreen of the car and your dashboard is in front of you, consistently displaying your score, lap time, position indicator, gear stick, revs and miles per hour. You can choose to drive in automatic or manual (it's easier if it's in automatic) and there are two road racing tracks shead of you — a Speed Track and a really mad Stunt Track. The basic aim of the game is to drive your car once round either one of these two tracks, beating the time set by the computer. Sounds easy? Believe me, it aim't.

The Speed Track is murder. Just take a look at the banking bends and slippery straights on that map. Not only do you have to belt around the course as fast as possible, but also overtake slower cars and avoid oncoming traffic. If you're going too fast, you'll skid off the track and end up on the grass. (The speed signs are there for a purpose then, eh? Safety Conscious Ed) Then a little arrow appears, pointing you in the direction you Neeeeeeooooow! Hard Drivin' from Atari was the car racing sim to hit the arcades this summer. So when Jackie 'Hard' Ryan heard that Domark was well into completing the Spectrum version, she pulled on her driving gloves, jumped behind the wheel of her Reliant Robin and (after checking her A-Z of course) pootled on down to Putney to check it out. Vrroooooooooomm!! Chugga chugga!! Phutt phutt!!

Oh no, I took the wrong turning back there and now I'm on the Stunt Track. Yikes! That looks like the opened drawbridge up ahead! Accelerate! Accelerate!

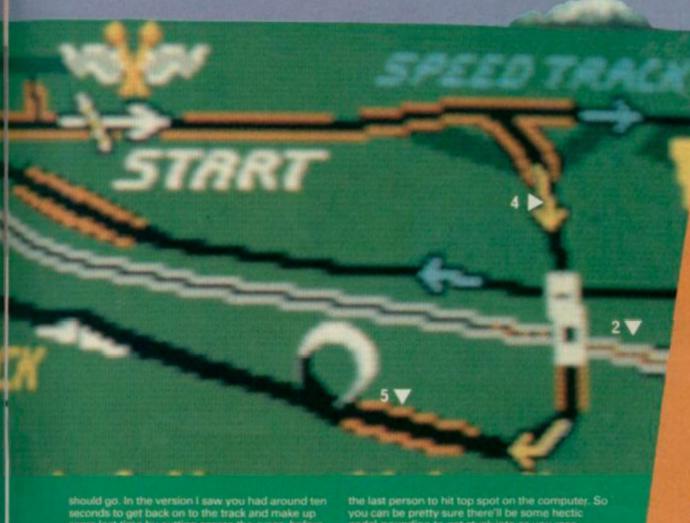

Woooooaaaaah! It never rains but it pours! First the drawbridge and now a loop-the-loop. Cripes, better get into lane here too, 'cos it's a tad tricky to see any of the oncoming traffic zooming out of it. Geronimooooooo!

Gordon Bennett. Looks like I came into that bend a tad too speedily and now I'm grass bound. Must get back on the track within ten seconds though if I want to stand a chance of finishing. Vroooooom!

seconds to get back on to the track and make up some lost time by cutting across the grass, before the computer plonked you willy nilly back on the course, generally placing you further back than you were. Pah.

you were. Pah.

As for the Stunt Track. Well, have you ever tried leaping a draw bridge while pootling along at 30mph, or driving blind through a loop-the-loop at 50mph? It's flippin' impossible. Mind you, if you do make a pig's ear of it, you can always sit back and watch all your spectacular crashes from the comfort of your own driver's seat. 'Cos just like in the arcade version, this game has an instant replay crash sequence too.

crash sequence too.

Make it to the first checkpoint and you get the chance to go on and try to finish the circuit. But cross the finishing line and beat the clock and you then get to go on to the Championship Lap and face the Phantom Photon.

It begins with you and Phantom Photon lined up on the starting grid. Phantom Photon isn't a phantom though, oh no. He's a physical reincarnation (in yet another Ferrari, of course) of the last person to hit top spot on the computer. So you can be pretty sure there'll be some hectic pedal-pounding to get stuck into as you race against another car, rather than the clock, in the Championship Lap. (Oh, and since you two are the only vehicles on the road, there's no need to worry about oncoming traffic. Hoorahl!)

Phantom's motor always follows exactly the same course that the last Phantom Photon took to win the coveted title. But then the fun really starts when one of your previous Championship Lap drives makes you Phantom Photon and you end up racing against yourself!

Hard Drivin' looks like it's going to breath a new lease of life into the fairly tried-and-tested formula of car racing sims. Watch out for the full review next issue.

GH STBUSTERS III

RE BACK!

Yep, they finally did it. The superpowers pressed those cute little red buttons and the world's been blown up. The poor blighters still alive have either lost their marbles or turned in total desperation to the pleasures of the flesh (cannibalism that is, perv peeps). The only chance our hero, Jonathan Jungle Rogers (concrete jungle, geddit?), has to escape is to run like the blazes to a launching platform and scarper on a ship headed for space.

The upshot of this whole shebang is that you (our Jonathan) have got to fight your way through two loads full of crazed and frenzied radioactive blokes and robots (rotters). First off, you're hurled into the midst of one of those left/right flick-screen beat-'em-up affairs pretty much in the mould of Vigilante, Renegade, Dragon Ninja - you know the stuff.
Basically, it's a case of kicking and punching diced carrots out of a bunch of radioactives who glow in the dark and throw dynamite at you. Then it's face to face with the extra found end-on-level haddie. Only face with the extra tough end-of-level baddie. Ooh, what a surprise!

Second load, and the launch pad you're after just happens to be defended by a psychotic maniac with an army of defensive robots and gun emplacements to his name. The pesky blighters just won't let you get on with your job! They follow you, throw atomic mines at you and send out their mega kangaroo destroyers (big tanks with mega guns). Your honest-to-goodness bloke, just trying to escape the planet and make a better life for himself, has no choice but to pump them full of lead with his machine gun. What a shame.

Well, that sounds like a pretty run of the mill beat-

Well, that sounds like a pretty run of the mill beat'em-up cum shoot-'em-up to me, I hear you cry.
Well, yes. There's nothing mind-bogglingly new about this little number. I grant you. But having said that, it does have some of the biggest, meanmuther-looking sprites I've recently seen on the Speccy, clear if unspectacular backdrops and brillo 128K sound. The fighting moves on the beat-'em-up bits are a bit on the boring side (just punching, crouching and kicking) and poorly animated, but on the shoot-'em-up levels it really comes alive.

Wandering along claustrophobic corridors with giant gun on hip, taking pot shots at the trillions of robots and security droids that gang up on you from robots and security droids that gang up on you from above... well, it's got much of the feel and atmosphere of that space film Aliens. (What a pity the Speccy conversion of that was so hopeless!) Yup, real gung ho macho excitement (if you like that sort of thing). For mindless blasting satisfaction it takes some beating.

There's one major fly in the ointment though—the difficulty level (it is a Dinamic game, after all). It's just pitched way to hard. Not quite as bad as Navy Moves perhaps, but you still get zapped straight back to the beginning again far too often. How blooming frustrating! Maybe I'm just going soft, but the fact I wasn't getting anywhere fast really put me off. Don't start raiding your piggy bank.

Ghouls Chosts Ghouls Ghouls Ghosts

US Gold/£9.99 cass

Matt I got told off by Jackie for swearing this week, and now I've got to put 20p in the swear box every time I allow an expletive to pass my lips. She's got £4.60 off me already but insists "it'll all go to a good cause". Hmm.

Anyway, now I've got to try and get through this review without letting a single bit of saucy, blue or otherwise spicy language slip out. She's really picked the wrong time for these sort of shenanigans as well, 'cos Ghouls And Ghosts is a right sod (um, okay, a fiver) and just the sort of game that encourages the spontaneous use of colourful colloquialisms. In other words, it's bloomin' tricky! (Yikes! $5.20! Oh no, I said "Yikes"! That's $5.40. I mean 60! Damn! Uh-oh. $5.80) I mean, there you are, wandering along, minding your own business, and what happens but a zombie skeleton murderer leaps up out of the ground and has a go at you! Then another one! And another! Vultures fly after you, plants lob stulls, pigs charge, other monsters spit fire and it all gets very unfriendly indeed! And that's just the first level! It's enough to make a grown man weep – and take out a blinking standing order with the ruddy swear box! (Another couple of 20 pees. That's £6.20 you owe. Jackie)

Yup, Ghouls And Ghosts is really hard. Perhaps a

Yup, Ghouls And Ghosts is really hard. Perhaps a bit too hard to be friendly. In addition to the baddies, the checkpoints you have to reach to prevent getting sent right back to the beginning are quite far apart, meaning your first hour of playing is Frustration City. At least, it is if you're as crap as me. (£6.40.

Generally the controls work well but you have to jump up in the air, using your joystick, before you can access the upwards throwing weapons — which is sometimes rather unfortunate because it means you leap so high as to touch the villain you were trying to shoot and so kill yourself. Baddies sometimes rise up out of the ground right beneath you too, giving you no chance. Mmm.

Basically really good gameplayers with a lot of perseverence will find it 'just right', but ones who are a bit crap might get a bit put off. (What's that, Jack? Oh, I didn't say 'crap' again, did !? Alright, £6.60. What do you mean "£6.80"?)

Right, now we've got that out of the way, let's take a look at, erm, the look of the thing. Even though it's based on an arcade original, programmers Software Creation seem to have totally thrown out of the window any pretence at emulating coin-op graphics in their conversion. In other words, it looks like a good old fashioned Speccy game, not an 'interesting', 'honourable' but ultimately failed attempt to recreate the colour and giant sprites of your average snazzy coin-op. Totally the opposite of games like, say, Altered Beast and quite a welcome relief.

The small, monochrome figures you see here may not initially set the pulses racing, but they're serviceable, have a wide range of movements and don't get in the way of the extremely challenging gameplay. Later on, when a big, snazzy graphic appears (or a neat little one, like the flickering fire bombs you throw or the rain that falls in some scenes) it's a nice surprise and sometimes truly stunning. The whole thing is backed by some of the neatest sounds (in 128K) I've ever heard on the Speccy, with a real sing-along intro ditty too. Other than that, there's not much instant appeal here but tons of life expectancy. So, to sum up, Ghouls And Ghosts makes a welcome change from the recent slick, flash but ultimately shallow coin-op hits which US Gold has produced recently (Fog Worlds, Strider) and shows a massive improvement on the dull conversions it did at the start of the year. It's good to see the gang producing genuinely good arcadey games again and this must rate as one of the most challenging

ଚ୍ଚି

O'Reilly O'Rourke! (I think we'll round that off at seven quid, thankyou very much. Jackie) Oh drat.

and playable of the year. A bit of a triumph for USG and Software Creations all round, I think. Blimey

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT, THEN?

Ghouls And Ghosts is, of course, the sequel to that earlier arcade smash Ghosts And Goblins, and features the return of all our favourite characters. There's our hero, Arthur the Knight Errant, a rather skinny, characteriess little monochrome sprite with an exaggerated running action, magic cast iron armour and a limitless supply of throwing spears. He's got a wide range of movements (left, right, jump left, jump up, jump right, crouch, throw left, throw right, throw up (yuk!), throw down and climb) and can collect other weapons from the magical chests strewn along the way or from jars carried by dead baddies. Collecting and using these weapons in the right order is apparently the secret to success in Ghouls and Ghosts, but I haven't quite got it sussed yet. Then there's his chick, the wonderfully named Prin-Prin. She can't do anything (as such) but just sort of waits for you at the end of the game. Of course, you won't get that far - not if the forces of evil have anything to do with it anyway (and they will). And that's the plot. Good, eh?

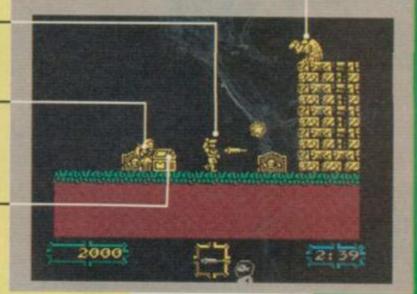

This is you (or in this case, me) Arthur the Knight Errant. Dull looking chap aren't you? Or aren't I, I suppose I should say. The things you're throwing are javelins. Take that, ghost or ghoulie, whichever you are!

Uh-oh. More of these Grim Reaper zombie things. Get back in the ground, son of soil!

Uh-oh, a treasure chest. Watch this one – if a magician pops out you've only seconds before it's quacking

Look out, it's a vulture. He'll sit there looking all innocent, but just wait 'till you go past. (He'll whizz down and attack you.) The scamp!

hard though.

XENOFIGE

MicroStyle/£9.99 cass/£14.99 disk

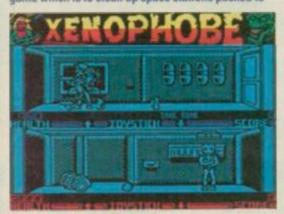

Robin MicroProse must be running out of things to simulate, having already churned out games based around every possible type of death dealing vehicle. Oh, with the exception of milkfloats that is. There's a notable gap in the range when it comes to milkfloats. Now it's turning its hand to coin-ops with the first release on its new 'Games For Adults (But With No Whey Hey Parts)' MicroStyle label.

Xenophobe, the coin-op, is a viewed-from-theside, exploration-based, multi-player blasterama which usually prises a few 50ps from me whenever we meet. And, with the nauseating sincerity of Miriam Stoppard, I can confirm that this is a pretty authentic conversion.

The plot's contrived rubbish. My copy's on its way to the Friends of the Earth Recycling Dept. So let's concentrate instead on the real nitty-gritty of the game which is to clean up space stations packed to

Our intrepid Player One is attempting to break the world record for the number of allens clinging to the body. the rivets with some aliens of the Xeno genus. Said clean up job can be done alone or with another player and the screens split in half to provide each of you with a view of the action.

Each level needs to be rid of Xenos in a set time, before they completely overrun the place, and there's a nice selection of hi-tech sci-fi weaponry for you to utilise. Once the Xeno count on the space station is zilcho you're beamed back to ship and given a lift to the next level (of which there's a total of four).

This is Player One, who I've selected from a total of nine different characters. Hmmm, looks a bit alien himself, doesn't Told you these aliens were scary. This one leaps at you, spitting venom.

Your health and score. You start with 2,000 health points but the Xenos have got some really inventive ways of taking them off you.

Here's Player Two

You won't find scarier baddies than the ones in this game. They sap your health points so inventively too. Some cling to you, others spit and the worst of all zaps zillions of health points with his mesmerising version of the Paddington Bear Hard Stare. The skill with which they've been drawn extends to all the graphics which, although monochrome, are beautifully crisp and clear. Spooky soundtrack too.

Xenophobe's biggest problem is life expectancy. The attempted strategy elements (having a

Grandslam/£8.99 cass/£12.99 disk

Marcus "Woor, Saint, wossis sen? Iss one o'vese compu'er games, innit? 'Ow much wad'll we be gettin' for it, then?"

Whatever they're getting, it can't be enough, lan St John and Jimmy Greaves as well as being cracking footballers (back in the '60s and '70s when I w as a mere lad) are possibly the two greatest Britons of the current age. With wit, wisdom and more casual jumpers than you'd see in a series-full of A Question Of Sport, they shine as beacons of sanity in an area with, let's be frank, norralot of competition. Bob Wilson? Nick 'II's Not A Toupée' Owen? Or even that famous Yorkshire hamlet, Elton Welsby? Pah!

So it's a shame to report that the lads have by no means "done great" with this computer game equivalent. For one thing, there isn't a jumper lo be seen. And Saint doesn't chuckle merrity at Jim's witticisms once. No jokes about Hartlepeot, or Scottish goalkeepers. In fact, the only things that connect this game with either The Saint or Greavsie are the rather dodgy digitised pics of them that crop up throughout the game. Otherwise, it's just another two-bit footie guiz game.

Now, I hear you murmur with righteous indignation, the Speccy market hasn't exactly been overwheimed by a tidal wave of two-bit footie quiz games, or even one-bit ones. It's just that, after playing Saint And Greavsie, it rather feels as though it has. This is a football quiz that, while moderately well programmed and reasonably challenging, so lacks variety that you find yourself nodding off before the game is even half way through.

So, having chosen your team (say, Maidstone Utd) and your captain (say, M Berkmann), you advance to the question-answering bit. Like Triv, this is fab if there are lots of you huddling around the warm Speccy as the cold winter nights draw in, but if you're on your own there's little incentive. The winner is the player who gets the most points, and if you're the only player you're the winner before you've started. Great.

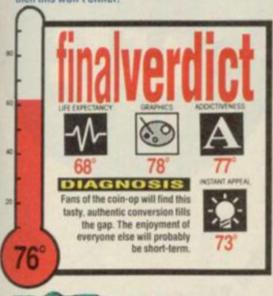

Assuming you have chosen the 'easy' questions, you now kick off. Each question represents a match, and there are three sorts you can get — Home, Away and Derby. Home questions score just one point, and these are, in theory, the easier, Away score two, and are usually about football in the '60s and '70s (easy for me, hard for most YS readers). Derby questions are about football trivia, score three points, and are often actually the easiest of the lot. Which sort of question you get is decided by a bar graph on the screen that leaps up and down. Press fire and it stops, and elsewhere on the screen your ball alights on one of the three question types.

So, a question comes up. Who scored six goals against Sunderland in the 1960s? To whom did Leeds sell goalkeeper Gary Sprake? (Don't ask me, by the way — I got these two wrong.) Get one right and you may be given the opportunity to save a penalty for a bonus point (this, like all such subgames, is impossible at first and a pushover when you've worked out how to do it).

And, er, that's it. There's a short game (21 matches) and a long game (42 matches) but that's all the choice you really get. What makes me suspect that this game was conceived and programmed in a hurry is that, when you finally finish this marathon (42 matches may not sound selection of different characters to control and ID cards and keys to access certain areas, for example) might eek a few extra hours out of it but, on the whole, gameplay's fairly shallow, with the same combination of crouch and fire tactics appearing to get you past most of the baddies. The original's addictiveness came from an accommodating nature which allowed simultaneous three player games. Only couples can play together on the Spectrum and annoyingly this slows the game down pretty drastically. It's definitely worth seeking out though, but if the arcade machine didn't give you excited palpitations then this won't either.

SPOTFING TRIANGLES

CDS/£9.99 cass/£14.99 disk

Robin I've only seen ITV's Question Of Sport rip-, er, derivative a few times but the triangle in question doesn't seem very sporty to me. After all, when was the last time you saw it pole-vault 15 feet into the air, somersault three times and plunge into a swimming pool half a kilometre below? What a con. Mind you, it's still probably more intelligent than the three teams of famous sporting guests put together.

This licensed TV conversion is pretty true to the original programme with a total of seven different rounds making up each game. Four of them are Standard Question ones which have each of the three players moving around the triangle on the roll of a random die. Landing on your own colour square gets you a quezzie from your chosen specialised subject (no Integral Polymer Dynamics I'm afraid, just 12 popular sports to be interrogated on). Tucked in between the standard bits are the Hit For Six and Jigsaw Picture rounds. The object here is to guess from rather unobvious clues which geezer from the list your Speccy's thinking about. The final round is Quickfire Questions which has the computer pulling random puzziers from its 2,500 strong collection, only this time it's finger on the buzzer time with the first one to answer correctly bagging the points. And that's it unfortunately, not exactly packed with variety or any of those thrills and spills we expect in a game nowadays.

All the same, it's not too bad technically. The

All the same, it's not too bad technically. The graphics are clear and colourful, although they're not required to jump about and explode like they do in most games, and the whole thing's got a nice professional sheen to it.

Basing a game around this TV prog obviously wasn't a great idea. At least that has Dennis Taylor's plankton-like witticisms to draw your attention away from the yawn inducingness of it all. Still, if sport's your 'thang', no doubt you'll be spookily drawn to it, despite your befter judgement.

Thirty minutes of yawnsome TV successfully converted into the same amount of game playing time. Sport triv nutters might want it though.

many but try playing 'em), the game then tells you that the team which came second actually won—even though it scored fewer than half the points you did. Grr. Anyone tried playtesting in Grandslam?

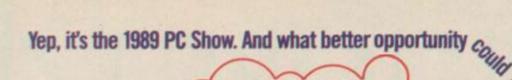

No, this isn't really up to scratch. At the end of the day, Brian... er, it gets dark. Really, only footie quiz freaks should invest — especially if they want to know who really did score six goals for West Ham against Sunderland in the 1960s...

Michael Jackson, international superstar, friend of zoo animals and musical record breaker, will soon be starring in US Gold's Moonwalker. We sent David Whistlin' Rick Wilson (who's also had lots of records broken) to take a pre-release peek.

Right, I've got my sparkly socks on, my half-mast stripey trousers, my one white glove, I've had my skin pigmentation lightened so I look like one of the Finn Family Moomintroll, and I've spent all night in a plastic bubble full of pure oxygen. (Get on with it!! Ed) Hem, hem, now I'm ready to check out US Gold's Moonwalker licence! Aw! I'm bad! (Mmm. And so's your music. Ed)

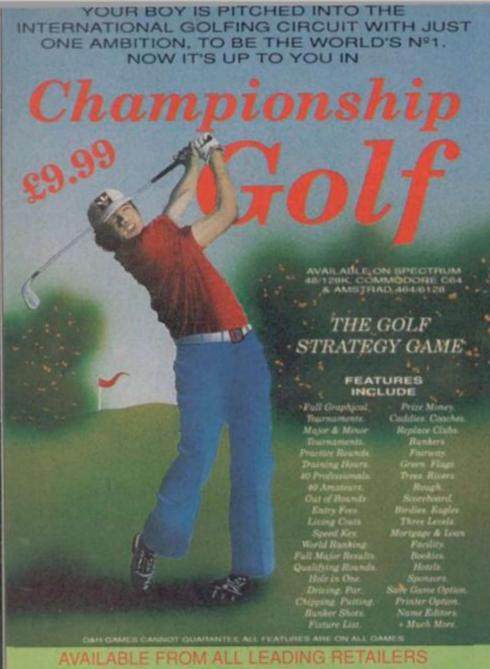

Moonwalker, as you're probably well aware, is Michael's movie - an everyday tale of good (which is Michael, except, erm, he's 'bad') and bad (that's Mr Big, who's probably 'quite good' in Michael Jackson speak, but is actually a Dastardly Villain). I wonder if you can guess who wins? (And anyone who says "Mr Big" gets the same as Norway in the Eurovision Song Contest — "Nurll Pwoin!") Anyway, the interesting bit of the film comes before this inevitable outcome (well, most of it does, in fact), and sees Michael dancing, singing, and changing Transformer-style into a jet car, a robot and a flying saucer. Hurrah! Well, that was the movie, and here comes the computer game. Out in time to appear in your Christmas stockings, it's from US Gold, and will let you step into those famous patent shoes and one white glove!

Level Two

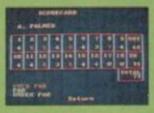

Here you are, on your bike, wearing the aforementioned outrageous bunny costume, the tune's changed to Speed Demon, and you're collecting magical orbs! There's a bit of strategy involved here, since the orbs need to be collected in order. Oh, and you've got several of Mr Big's drug peddling operations to stamp out en route, as well as some of his henchmen to run over (don't try this one at home, kidsl), before you turn into a super jet car, leap a huge barrier, and escape the pursuing vehicles. It's quite neat really, the way that Michael changes his appearance so much in the film, 'cos this helps each level to look different in terms of your sprite, your viewpoint, and also the style of play.

SZONEDIC

'm thrilled to report
this month an epochmaking event in Spectrum adventure history. No, not the release of that stunning adventure, One Of Our Wombats Is Missing,
nor even the release of
that even more stunning book,

Adventures On The Spectrum by Mike Gerrard (both available shortly, so don't panic. End of plug). Nope, what happened this month is that I got my first ever fax message! All the way from Belgium too, via the YS fax machine and into the low-tech cardboard box where all the adventure stuff ends up.

The faxman is David Rademaker of Palinghuizen 90, 9000 Ghent, Belgium, who says he's a devoted reader of the adventure section. He's about to produce a complete guide to The Bard's Tale, and wants me to send him a list of all adventure clubs, adventure magazines or any magazines with an adventure section. Cheek! A devoted reader only needs to look through the back issues to find the addresses for himself. But if you're a Bard-freak, you might like to write to David for more details.

Bard-ists will also like this tip from Michael Swallow of Sunderland. To get money and items quickly Michael says you should choose to load in Merger, then load in your previously saved party, choose them, load them in again and then trade useful items and gold from the character list to your member list. Then you can either load them in yet again and trade again, over and over, or save your party, delete characters, load in the newly saved team and trade all over again. Michael reckons that by using this ingenious cheat he's managed to accumulate 12,245,370,000 pieces of gold. Just send me 10% for printing your letter, that's all.

Now you may think it's an easy job, sitting back in my hammock here and reading the occasional fax message, but I do get some rather strange mail at times. For example, I've had three letters from Newcastle, all in different envelopes, all in the same hand-writing, all asking me four questions and all allegedly signed by different people. Is this reader weird, or does he just want to make sure he gets the answers? So for David Burton, alias Geoff Conway, alias T Rixby, here are some of the answers. To pass the tank in Espionage Island EVISOLPXE ESU. How to get into the hole in Eye Of Bain? Well, there are several holes in this adventure, so just ELOH OG. How to open the door in the ruined tower, also in Eye Of Bain? First you need the key to unlock it, then you ROOD OG. To get the key, SENOB ENIMAXE. Finally, something that must be really puzzling this reader as he asks it in all three letters, how do you get on the bus in Zzzz? A common question, and the common answer is first to NGIS TCERE, then SUB POTS and YENOM EVIG.

Not all letters are quite so puzzling, though. Some are just plain helpful, like the one from C Pope of no known address who sent me a full solution to The Hobbit. He also asks where he can get hold of Lord Of The Rings and Shadows Of Mordor, as he can't find them anywhere. Try putting an ad in or sending a letter to one of the adventure fanzines mentioned in my recent Mag-Watch article. Thanks a million for the solution, which apparently took all day to write out. I can believe it. The tip I'll use te man and the control of the contro is one that'll answer a question from another reader, who wanted to know how to open the chest in The Hobbit. The input from another reader, who wanted to know how to open the chest in The Hobbit. The input you need is admittedly a little difficult to work out, as you must type TSEHC NEPO. Not many people get that one. The secret is that you can only open it at the end, when you return with the treasure, so off you go and get it. C Pope's method of dealing with Gollum shows no mercy — DROWS HTIW MULLOG LLIK.

Where to get hold of adventures is a common question, and Joseph Perry of Willenhall in the West Midlands has a suggestion to make. Try your local library. He goes to one in Wolverhampton which hires out computer games on his library ticket, and judging by the number of questions Joseph asks they stock a fair number of adventures! Not all libraries offer this service, but try asking in your local one because even if they don't do it there may be a branch in the area that does.

My next letter's from a cat, who claims that its name is Paul Cook and that it can write adventures with PAW. Fur enough. But Paul The Pussy says he's run out of ideas of his own and is looking to collaborate with someone on a game. If you've got an idea, an outline, a story or a half-written adventure, and are finding the programming side tough going, contact Paul Cat at 11 Evergreen Road, Lowestoft, Suffolk NR32 2SB. He's at your service for two tins of Vindaloo Whiskas.

Now I look through it all, there's been quite a mailbag this month. The next letter's from no less an address than that of The Ritz, in London. This is from that famous spelling mistake, Denis Reilly, who pops up mysteriously all over the world, usually writing to me on impressive hotel notepaper. What mysteries lurk behind these movements? This time Denis has also sent me a postcard of his patron saint, St Denis, showing him holding his head in his hands, having had it chopped off. His head, that is. What has this to do with adventure games? Nowt at all, so on to the next letter.

Fiona Robertson of Dundee offers to kiss my feet if I can answer her questions. Bad luck, Fiona. To use the cash machine in The Shrewsbury Key — ETON EKAT/TOLIP ESU/DRAC ESU. In Operation Berlin you do need to open the left luggage lockers, and to get the key you must search around on the underground platform (NIB ETSAW EHT NI S'TI). And what do you do when you get to the bus station? First save your game, and then HCAOC NO TOOB NEPO.

Derek Shaw of West Kingsdown says he's 39 but looks 59, and the reason is Colditz. How on earth do you solve the problem of the creaking floorboard? SDRAOBROOLF EKAT OT REVEL ESU. And how to find the dagger in the sewers? The answer's forwards this time, just go e/e/e/w/e and then west to get out again. You too can write to Mike Gerrard and look 20 years younger. If you're only 20 years old though, better not bother.

C A Henderson of Cleveland asks about The Balrog And The Cat, as well he might. What to do with the stone? GNIRREH DER A S'TI. How do you sign the form? With a small pencil which you get YOB LLAMS EHT MORF. To do that you must first GGE EHT KCARC, but save your game before trying as there's a random element built in and it doesn't always work first time. Finally, in An Everyday Tale Of A Seeker Of Gold, to deal with the bulbous eyes, KCTTS PRAHS A HTIW MEHT EKOP. To get that, first HCNARB A KAERB in the deep green forest, and then DROWS RUOY HTIW TI NEPRAHS.

Graeme Bell of Bletchley asks how to get past the crocodile in Zzzz.

ELIDOCORC NO DNATS. That one was easy. Mrs Watson of Ely in Cambridgeshire wants to know how to get off the ship in Mindshadow.

REVAELC HTIW NIAHC ROHCNA TUC. Darren Davies, also of Ely but this time in Cardiff, asks about Inspector Flukeit. How to get the key out of the vase — SREDNULB OT ESAV EVIG. How to get in the trunk — EDAPS EHT HTIW TI SKAERB SREDNULB.

Steve Anderson writes from Gloucester with some more funny inputs for "the excellent Behind Closed Doors". He also sends in his own 11-move solution to the game, similar to that of Craig Henderson in ish 45 except that Steve suggests you begin by pulling the chain, which makes the Balrog jump to his feet. Then he must pull up his trousers. Steve's additions to the funny input collections are GAMES, STEVE SÉAN, SEX, CATCH FLY, ROCHDALE, BALROG and, would you believe, JACKIE RYAN! Soon as I finish writing this I'll be investigating what response you get to that one. Steve also includes a few rudies that I can't possibly print, like a certain four-letter word typed backwards.

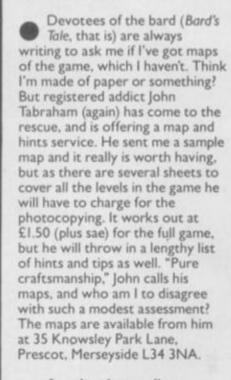

Sometimes letters arrive at just the right time. David Greive and his son Ashley write from Dumfries, presumably each with one hand on the pencil, and ask how to get going on Knightmare. I didn't have the info on this, 'til another letter in the same post from Matthew Lawrence of Woking told me all about it. That's a common question, and pretty tricky, so for the benefit of all here's Matthew's advice, printed in a forwards direction (so if you don't want to know just read it backwards). GET FOOD, ASK OLD MAN, GIVE WATER, GIVE FOOD, ASK OLD MAN, GET SPACE, GET ROCK, OPEN DOOR, GO EAST, TAKE ROCK, DIG GROUND and you'll fall into a dungeon passage with two guards. Immediately enter THROW and press fire, open the door to the south (don't go west whatever you do), and when you come to the wall monster answer FALSE, TRUE, FALSE, Phew, what a month. Letters from The Ritz and a cat, faxes from Belgium and promises to kiss my feet. I think I need to go and lie down in a darkened room...

Venture forth with Mike Gerrard

John Tabraham of Prescot asked me about the Spectrum release of Bard's Tale II, as he's now mapped every square of every level in the first game and can't wait to get his hands on the followup. He'll have to, unfortunately. Since the reader's wish is my command, I picked up the phone to Activision and asked them about it. All they would say was a fairly non-commital "Not this year". Oh well, it's nearly next year, but I wouldn't hold your breath by the sound of it.

Another impending release ought to be Gnome Free, the third of Level 9's Ingrid Bottomlow games. Only the other day I read an interview with Level 9's Pete Austin, who ticked the journalist off for suggesting that Pete himself had said there would be a third Ingrid game. "I think I was slightly more careful with my words," Pete answered. "What I actually said was that I would very much like there to be another Ingrid."

Well, blow me down but later that very same day I received a letter from Claire Watson of Needham Market asking what had happened to Gnome Free, as promised on the box for Ingrid's Back? Sure enough, a quick look at the packaging reveals that Gnome Free will be published in May 1989. Ahem, yes, well perhaps whoever writes Level 9's packaging should be slightly more careful with their words!

So what's happening on Gnome Free? Well, according to Pete they've got an outline and even a booklet done, but are waiting to see how their next release, Scapeghost, does before committing themselves to a third Ingrid game. It'll be a great shame if they don't go ahead, as the first two have been amongst the best adventure releases of the last few years!

"Keep on writing the YS Adventures section," says Daniel Brice, "lest we should forget how to SDRAWKCAB DAER!" Don't worry, Daniel, I will,
I will. But what are you doing in the news section? Oh, I see, looking for a quick plug.
Varrooooom! There it went. And let's see it again in slow motion...

What am I on about? I've no idea. What Daniel's on about is his Spectrum Software Exchange Club, run from 178 Forest Road, Kingswood, Bristol BS15 2EN. He's been running it successfully for some time, though says he'd like to attract more adventurers as at the moment only 5% of members want to swop adventure games. I'm always getting letters from readers trying to get hold of older adventure games, and swop clubs like this are one way of doing just that. Send an sae for further details, and note that Daniel deals in original copies only. Pirates will be shown the door.

t's been 18 months since Tartan's last release, Double Agent, and looking at the programming work that's gone into this new one I'm not surprised! The result is a headache of an adventure that's totally different from anything you've ever played before, and guaranteed to keep you scratching your head for months on end. There are two modes of play, easy and hard, and as the easy one is impossible, anyone playing the hard level

The BA clone has a design flaw (another one!) in that it does the opposite of what you tell it, so GET JACKET will result in the jacket being dropped. In fact this isn't fully implemented as commands like SEARCH and STEAL still work as they should maybe the author couldn't think of convenient opposites. I know I can't.

Part One requires you to manoeuvre both clones into the ante-room of the Clonetron machine, avoiding the various guards who are wandering round the deserves a medal - or a medical checkup.

Gordello is a three-part, text-only adventure which tells the tale of the evil Dr Gordello and his clinic in Switzerland. It's here that he has perfected the technique of making clones of animals, and is now experimenting on humans. The actual storyline is as complicated as a piece of knotted string, but it's all explained in the optional instructions.

A few of these knots in the plot unravel in places where they shouldn't. For instance, you are an agent for the S6 secret service in London and your boss has received a video from Gordello that he claims shows you and a clone at his Swiss clinic. In other words, he claims you are a clone, the original being under his control in Switzerland! Your boss disproves this by the simple technique of asking you your phone number, as the imperfect clones cannot remember numbers. But a moment later you discover your task is to unite the two present sub-standard clones in the Clonetron machine and thereby produce a super-clone, capable of speech. So if your boss already knows that the two current clones are not capable of speech, what on earth is this phone number nonsense all about? As long as you can speak, you can't be a sub-standard clone anyway. On top of that, if your boss knows that uniting the sub-standard clones in the Clonetron will produce a super-clone, how come Gordello hasn't twigged yet? I think the plot's got so convoluted it's totally out of control.

Anyway, ignore all that and get on with the game. Just do what you're told and you'll be alright. At first glance the splitscreen looks identical to Double Agent, and even at second glance too, with the AB clone's half of the game on the lefthand side, and the BA clone's down the right. You can conveniently control both clones from a keyboard in London, but only one at a time, switching between them by typing AB or BA. You can also type P to pause, and believe me you'll place. The clones are in different areas of the laboratory, the only joint location being the ante-room, so no co-operation between the two is needed and you can solve the problems on one half of the screen first then go on to the other, or flip between the two as you go along.

If I thought Part One was complicated

the opposite of what you say, and there seems to be only one entrance to the machine? I get a headache just thinking

If you get to Part Three, which I estimate should take you 'til about 1999 when the story is actually set, then you will at last have managed to create the single super-clone. So what happens to the second half of the screen? Can we kiss it goodbye? No chance. In that window you can now control any one of the 14 other characters that are moving around. Type CALL SOLDIER, for instance, and it's the soldier's view of the adventure you see on the right-hand side. My mind not only boggles it double-boggles at the programming problems there must have been. If it took 18 months to write I reckon Tom Frost must have been working a 36-hour day.

Anyway, the fourth part of this threepart adventure is a bonus program that gives you some news you definitely will not want to hear when you get to the end of the game. There's also a couple of puzzle games as a reward for finishing.

Gordello is a fascinating adventure, and in amongst all these complications of plot, screen layout, character-switching and programming there are some clever puzzles as well. The features in the game aren't just gimmicks, they are actually

Close OF The Clone AB Brain: The A-section Dormitory in which I spend many restless nights. Only exit is east shouts out but it's no use

Clone BA Brain: The B-section Dorwitory in Which I pass many boring

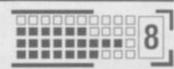

(and I did) then Part Two gets even worse. The twist, as if we needed one, is that the two clones bumped their heads together when leaving the ante-room at the end of Part One, the result being that they now both respond when you type in a command, with the one you're in current contact with acting first. Don't forget, though, that clone BA still does the opposite of what you tell it, so if you type in SOUTH then AB goes south in his half of the screen while BA goes north in his half! At least they start off in the same place, and you're only faced with making one map in this part, not two separate ones. But how on earth do you get both clones to the Clonetron simultaneously when one always does

part of the story and part of the problems

The only simple thing is the fact that it's an excellent game that you ought to rush out and buy immediately. Then rush in again as you can't buy it outside and send off your money to Tartan Software the noo!

THE CASE OF THE BEHEADED We've had quite a few Sherlock Holmes send-up adventures over the past year, so it's good to see someone going back to SAAUGELER

Holmes send-up adventures over the past year, so it's good to see someone going back to the original character and producing a terrific adventure as a result — knowing that the Sherlock character and stories are safely out of copyright, of course.

This is a two-part text-only adventure, so how come there are four programs on the tape? Elementary, my dear readers. The first prog's an intro and the last prog's a free bonus adventure called Yuppie. This revolves around a day in the life of an aspiring yuppie, Nigel Ffoulkes-Smythe. It's amusingly done, and raised a few chuckles from me.

The intro program, which is written in Basic, loads up a menu from which you can choose several options. There are the credits and some brief adverts (and no, I don't mean they're adverts for briefs!), with lists of some of the commands each adventure understands. Useful in Smuggler will be X for examine, Z to wait, ALL commands, FIND (another character), TALK TO/ QUESTION/ACCUSE (another character), TS/TL for tape save/load and RS/RL for RAM save/load. Yuppie has even more interesting commands, like PROPOSE, REMOVE and INSERT, though sadly I didn't get far enough into the adventure to try those out.

Back at Smuggler, the scene-setting story is a really well-written piece, an extract from Dr Watson's casebook that's full of the feeling of the original Holmes stories. In fact it reads to me like it must have come from a real Conan Doyle story — either that or programmer Patrick Walsh is very good at pastiche (this month's big word).

In the intro you meet Victor Wathley, who's consulting Holmes about his uncle, George Wathley. George has been a tea-importer for 20 years, and is a very wealthy man, though Victor suspects the wealth may have more to do with importing opium, alcohol and other such stuff than just the old PG Tips. But he also suspects that someone has a hold on his uncle, and is forcing him to do this, so he wants to know if Holmes can help. He shows Sherlock a note he found at his uncle's house on a recent visit, which says 'REMEMBER JOHNSON, YOU WILL GET THE SAME'. Holmes recalls the recent murder of Nathaniel Johnson, whose body had a note attached which showed two crossed swords. This is the symbol of the Fellowship of the Swords, a masonic-like society. Holmes arranges to meet Victor at his uncle's house in Horsham, where they then find the decapitated body of the uncle lying in a pool of blood. Your task as Holmes is to find the killer, the weapon and the motive.

On loading up the first part, it's 2 pm and there you are outside Wathley's country house with Watson, Victor and a headless corpse at your feet. Don't tread in the blood, it could be evidence.
Watson finds a button and a note on the body — the note, needless to say, has two crossed swords on it. Victor runs off to fetch the fuzz, leaving you and Watson to explore.

In the entrance hall you find a walking stick, with an ivory tip and a top that's encrusted with diamonds. This suggests robbery wasn't the motive, though the stick requires a close examination. A fire is still burning in the grate, so the crime must have been fairly recent. If you can find the secret room, which is none too difficult, you will unearth a diary which explains quite a lot about what's been going on. You also trigger off an amusing little message, where Watson's startled

I suppose, as you're faced more with the way things would be in the real world — a lot of objects to examine and to see what you can make of them, rather than just trying to get through locked doors, although there's one of those for you too!

There's also the traditional adventure bug, which I hope the author sorts out. In Wathley's bedroom, if you open the wardrobe you're told there's a coat inside, which then appears in the location description. Try to GET COAT, and you're informed it ain't there! GET COAT FROM WARDROBE? Nope. EXAMINE COAT, WEAR COAT? OPEN WARDROBE, CLOSE WARDROBE? Nope, can't be done. I checked the hint

Time 1:01 HM EXITS: NONE
This is Baker Street, the street of your lodgings. This time of night sees little activity, save for the occasional hansom cab which passes by.

What next?
WHATL A HANSOM CAB
Luckily a hansom cab is passing and you whistle to attract the cabbie's attention. The cab stops in front of you and the driver turns to face you;
Where to gentlemen?' he asks.

What next?

by a spider that runs up his trouser leg. As you point out what it is he brushes it off "and tries to regain his usual air of dignity". There are quite a few of these random messages which add to the enjoyment of the game.

As I played further into it, I found it very slightly disappointing — not that it's bad, not at all, just that I think more could have been made of it, when so much trouble has been taken with the story background. There aren't too many problems, and those that are there are comparatively easy — more a case of examining objects to find clues, and watching your score slowly mount up. You hope.

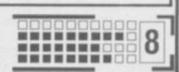

This certainly didn't put me off the game, but it shows the difficulty of adapting a Holmes-like investigation into an adventure game. It can be done, but I think you need a bit of problem-solving to your evidence-gathering. It's a different approach to an adventure game, sheet I'd been given, which suggested it would be useful to me if I got something from Wathley's wardrobe. I wish I could.

Assuming that bug's sorted out, this'll be an excellent game to play as what I saw of the rest of it was perfectly bug-free. The inclusion of a few tougher problems would have improved it, but it still rates very highly for entertainment value and professionalism. It's the first time I've heard of Patrick Walsh and Mental Image, but if The Case Of The Beheaded Smuggler's anything to go by it won't be the last.

HERMITA

irst, the facts. The Hermitage is the first release by the Pegasus Developments team. It's got full text 'n' pix on the +3 (which is being reviewed), with a lengthy text-only version for 128K machines and your basic bog-standard text-only job in 48K. The +3 disk uses the 'B' side to store and call up the graphics, and these are beautifully done in full-colour, putting Level 9's recent Lancelot attempts to shame. Take a bow, Peter Collins. There's even a bonus adventure on the disk, Teacher Trouble, and, despite being set in a school like hundreds of others, it's better than most and won me over at the point where the hero is wandering down a corridor and "Ernir is nasty things have been happening at the monastery. Several bodies are now lying around, with grizzly things having been done to them. There's a good gothic atmosphere, added to if you examine the statues in the chapel or read the bible you find in the pulpit. Off on your travels you get half-way over a rope bridge when a man appears at the other side and threatens to cut the rope if you don't cough up some cash. Result? One dead monk. Elsewhere there's a village where all hell's let loose, with drunken riotings, flaming huts and women being burnt at the stake. A good deed or two are needed here if you're to progress.

confronted by an enormous green thing covered in scabs! But enough of my problems and back to the game. .

The Hermitage is a gothic tale set in the Middle Ages in which you play the part of a monk named Ambrose. Your Archbishop gives you the task of going on a pilgrimage to the mountains of Vainmiomen to destroy an evil hermit, said by some to be an incarnation of the devil himself. You don't really feel up to it but the 'bish won't take "No" for an answer and off you go. This is a brief summary of a longer background nicely presented in an optional introduction.

The game's got a good professional look all round, except for spelling mistakes like 'existance', 'monotanous', 'uneasyily' and others too numerous to mention. Pegasus will have to sort this problem out if it's going to develop. Which it will, judging by this effort. The screen's well presented, the text is good, if a little gory in places, and the whole thing moves along briskly.

For once it pays to retrace your footsteps at the start, to discover that what you like to them and get the necessary response, and the vocabulary could be wider. A woman asks you to help her, but HELP WOMAN doesn't work, nor does RESCUE WOMAN (despite RESCUE being in the game's vocabulary according to the VOCAB command). You have to FREE WOMAN.

When a game has a few faults, as this one does, it often puts me off but the strong story and atmosphere of The Hermitage make it stand out from the crowd. Anyone taking the trouble to produce a special graphics version just for the +3 at under a tenner deserves a pat on the back too. Well worth buying.

STUIT CALLS

Step into the driving seat of one of the most wicked stunt cars around as a Stunt Car Racer. It's now up to you to prove just how good you are and to see whether or not you can ultimately become Division One Champion.

With a super-quick, turbo-charged V8 engine that will power you to incredible speeds, and long-travel suspension that enables you to soak up the bumps, your car really is an awesome projectile. The tracks are totally out of this world. Banked corners that enable you to 'pull g', undulating bumps that throw your car uncontrollably from side to side and huge ramps that catapult you into mid-air. In fact, you seem to spend so much time airborne, you could almost qualify for a pilot's licence!

Battle it out on the track against other computer controlled rivals, such as, Dare Devil and Road Hog. Race and jump so fast that your car starts to break up under the strain and then accelerate even more. There's no prizes for being second best in this game — it's all or nothing.

Stunt Car Racer - do you think you could be up there with the best?

Stant Car is utterly brilliant and offers adrenalin-pumping, gut wrenching high speed action that'll keep you engrossed for months. C + VG.

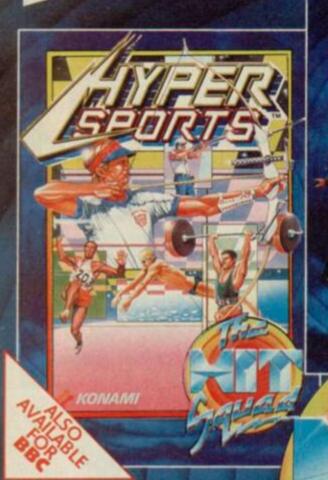

Stunt Car Racer is available for ST, Amiga, PC, Spectrum and Commodore 64

PROGRAM BIJSTOP

Me oh my, is Jonathan Davies a hero or what?

Still reeling from the trauma of Farty

The Warthog's, er, untimely demise

(Sob sob waaaaargh! JD) our resident prog-jock is... um... here again!

ell, yuletide is almost upon us once again, and all over the country those tacky illuminated snowmen are being dusted down and hung all over lamp posts. City centres take on an unnatural multi-coloured glow and Uncle Al rubs his hands in glee at the thought of all those potential Speccy owners scribbling out their letters to Santa.

The trouble is, having got your shiny new +3 or whatever, what are you going to do with it? Being a Pitstop reader, which puts you a cut above the rest already, you'll fling away the free games pack almost immediately and start searching for something a little more stimulating. Then you'll think back, inspiration will strike and you'll reach for your tattered copy of this ish.

There's yet another bumper bundle of code for you to digest this month, starting with a decidedly handy pointer routine from Menno van der Star. Not only that, there's a funny sort of wibbly thing from Andrew Paine too which I'm sure will find itself a use somewhere. And finally Turstan Felstead makes a welcome (?) return.

Well it's not, actually, it's a variety of colours, but red sounds nicer. This routine is the work of Menno van der Star who, with a name like that, could only come from the Netherlands. It does the mindbogglingly useful job of giving you a little pointer which you can move round the screen and use to select icons, draw pictures or anything like that. The code works under interrupt mode two, so once you've run it the computer can get on with running your Basic program while the pointer moves around as a 'background task' (100% computerspeak there).

Usage

Couldn't be more straightforward. Type in the Hex with, of course, the Hexloader (check out issue 45 for more info on that), and save it. Then reset the computer, put it into 48K mode if necessary, CLEAR 64999 and then load the code back in.

When you RANDOMIZE USR 65000, up it comes (fnurk). The arrow can be moved around using Q, A, O and P, and M 'fires'. It's best if you put the computer into some kind of a loop at this point, otherwise loads of letters appear at the bottom of the screen. The longer you hold down a key, the faster the arrow moves, but it never goes off the screen.

When it comes to actually using the thing, you'll find that 65485 holds the x position of the tip of the arrow and 65486 holds the y position.

When you press M, 65487 changes from nought to one. By peeking these addresses and getting your program to respond accordingly, you'll find you can generate a masterpiece in minutes.

If, for some perverse reason, you want to get rid of the arrow, RANDOMIZE USR 65006.

 I bet if you tried to count the number of times you've sat staring at your Speccy screen and thought "I wish I could make it wibble about a bit" you'd run out of fingers and toes in no time at all. Frustrating, isn't it? Andrew Paine has obviously encounted this problem more often than most, because he's actually got up and done something about it. Wibble is the result, and it does in fact make your screen, or just parts of it if you want, wibble about a bit

To put the thing into operation, type in the Basic section and save it with SAVE "WIBDEMO" LINE 190. Then, by way of the Hexloader, type in the Hex at address 60000 and save it after the Basic. Then reload and run. Wibbly, eh?

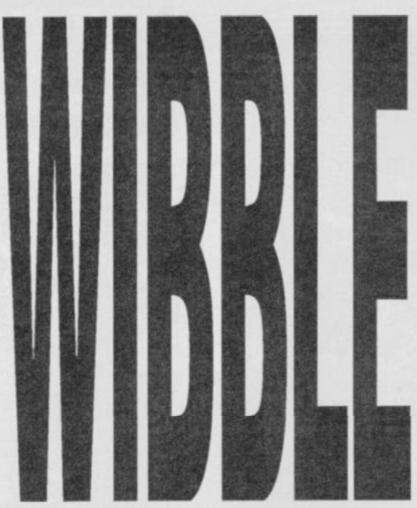

But it doesn't stop there. You can tweak the program to your satisfaction by POKEing the following addresses.

60004 Number of repeats until picture is stationary.

60006 Number of frames per repeat (must be a multiple of 16).

corner of window. 65534 Width of window in Acceptation by Andrew Paine Acceptations characters (allow at least three characters on either side of your image).

65535 Height of window (in pixels).

Equipped with only a crayon and low-voltage Speccy, Thurstan has somehow managed to put together another jumble of letters and numbers which, when typed in in the right order, produces astonishing results.

This time it's a short routine, with built-in demo, designed to add a bit of sparkle to your screens (which is why it's called Sparkle in fact).

The End Is Nigh

I think it's really time I went and thought about my Christmas shopping. Trouble is, however early I start I'll still find myself completely prezzyless on Christmas Eve. Please send your programs and gift ideas to me, Jonathan Davies, at Program Pitstop, YS, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

Following Tracksuit Manager's No. 1 Success comes

BOXING MANAGER

Real Fighting - Real Tactics - Real Management

End of Round 7 your boxer returns to the corner. The cuts worsening and there's a swelling beneath the eye. You have thirty seconds to patch him up. What about your fight tactics? Is he in front? Only the three fight judges know for sure, should you give him further instructions? – too late the bell sounds.

YES ANOTHER SMASH HIT COMING

All fights use an artificial intelligence with indepth commentary as 100 Boxers struggle to become Heavyweight champion of the world.

THIS GAME HAS...

100 Boxers 20 fight Managers all with individual abilities and ratings, 2 scouts * Different governing bodies * Physic * Trainer * Area national and world ranking displayed * Secretary * Filofax * Letters and telephone calls * It's all here with more.

PLUS...

 Move around your office • Use your telephone • Answer mail • Sign agreements with boxers, promoters, governing bodies • Set up deals • Visit physic or pop into the training camp • Manage up to Five boxers at once.

ALSO ...

Decide upon fight tactics according to the strength and weaknesses of your boxers, what are their weaknesses? sorry – you'll have to find out. Work as a second during rounds. Use sponge, flat iron, towel, water etc. Opponents use intelligence to decide upon their next round plans so beware.

BEWARE...

If you're looking for something easy or a joystick waggling punch up - look elsewhere this is the fight game with reality.

ZERO

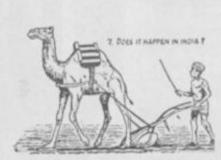

PIRATE PERIL ON ZERO ISLAND

Checked out ZERO yet? Whaddya mean, 'No'? It's our sister magazine, and it's just as skill as YS — but with one major difference. There aren't any Speccies in it. Instead, it's full of stuff about the 'snoot' machines (ie STs and Amigas and PCs). There's news, reviews, hints, tips — all the kind of 'gear' you'd expect, as it happens. And there's also a 'mag within mag' called Console Action, which is full of, erm, well, console stuff — Nintendo, Sega, PC Engine and all that malarkey. And the best thing about ZERO is that, unlike most of the other 16 bit mags, IT ISN'T BORING. Well, bits of it are, but most of it isn't. And anyway, the boring bits in ZERO are much less boring than the boring bits in the other 16 bit mags. So you can't lose really, can you? Buy ZERO and YS — you'll have the best of both worlds.

KEEP UP TO DATE ON THE 16 BIT MARKET – THE YS WAY

ZERO issue two is OUT NOW, and it's literally jam-packed with brilliance. From an exposé on the new Sega MegaDrive, through 'hundreds' of amazingly entertaining ST Amiga and PC games reviews, to an in-depth interview with Bungle The Bear (from Rainbow). We could go on for hours, but then the best thing you could do is to go out and BUY the blinking thing – it's only £1.50.

Matt's Corky Coin-Op

This is the biggest and most spectacular dedicated cabinet around at the moment. Peer in the back and what do you get but two screens worth of horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up. And space ship horizontal scroller at that. A bit of a disappointment really. Still, as horizontal scrollers go it's a bit of a goodie. There are hundreds (well, lots) of stages, starting off on the surface of the Sun and working their way out through the solar system past Mercury, the Earth, the Moon and so on to Jupiter. Still, back to

Here come the waves of alien space craft from the far end of the right hand screen now, giving you plenty of time to knock them out of the sky. A lot of these first wave ships are leaving icons behind too which seems pretty generous - until you realise how badly you're going to need them! Extra missiles, lasers, bombs and the force field especially come into their own in a big way when ships start appearing from the back of the screen, curling all around the place. Mutant fish leap out of the fire beneath you as well and giant end-of-level monsters like massive dragon fish float slowly but dangerously on to the screen. At some points the game flips and starts scrolling the other way with you now approaching from the far right.

Sagaia (what on earth is that name meant to mean?) is a fairly nvolving state-of-the-art shooty game, but, cabinet otwithstanding, there's little really new or memorable about it. In fact, these two screen set-ups look impressive, but I find the design demands that the screens are set so far back in the depths that sometimes the action feels strangely detached. Still, not a popular belief, this isn't a conversion of the famous Japanese cartoon about the adventures of our Dep Ed, but a hov craft shoot em-up instead.

Convertibility Factor: 5

The two screen effect and spectacular graphics would be lost on the Speccy, so you'd be left with a bit of a bog standard shooty game.

What's he doing orbiting somewhere near the Sun then?

is another contender in the 20p vertical scroller stakes, but a mos worthwhile one than Omega Fighter. An evil South mercan-style dictator called Colonel Claude (?) has taken over a the spooky, jungly country, and it's your job to go in and 'take most, as they say. You get a nice choice of four World War 2type planes to fly about in, each equipped with its own special weapon. They all get the upgradable forward firing machine ours, but one of them also comes fitted with what look like pating crates (which you bomb people with), another fires out a too of mini planes which swarm up the screen and so on.

The only trouble is Claudie-babes has his own squadrons of onious old fighter planes that come after you, and as if that asn't bad enough most of the ground-based natives seem petty hostile too. From flame-throwing dinosaurs and robot sects to boomerang-lobbing aboriginies nobody seems pleased piece you! Ho hum. Such is life.

This game is no ground breaker, but it's neat enough in its own $3-crossed-with-Prehistoric Isle sort of way, and worth a few ence of anyone's money. There's even a nice Those Magnificent Ven In Their Flying Machines title screen too. Hurrahl

BIG RUN

Yep, it's another racing game. This time it's the Paris-Dakar rally that gets the treatment, and pretty nifty treatment it is too. The race takes place over a series of stages across North Africa, from the streets of France to the roughest desert tracks. The game lives in a dedicated sit-down cabinet - though without hydraulics — and features high and low gears and brake and gas pedals. Your ride is a Porsche Turbo, though there are all sorts of other cars to race against. All very well, but how does it play?

Pretty blooming well, actually. Though the graphics aren't as polished as in Chase HQ, say, and the sprites are in general a lot blockier, they do the job well enough, and the speed of the game more than makes up for it. Big Run fills the screen with the sharpest of bends, trickiest of mountain passes and bumpiest of road surfaces - it sent me skidding and crashing all over the place! It's expensive (a pound a shot) and it's hardly as though racing games are thin on the ground, but for all that it's a lot of fun. Worth a try, at least.

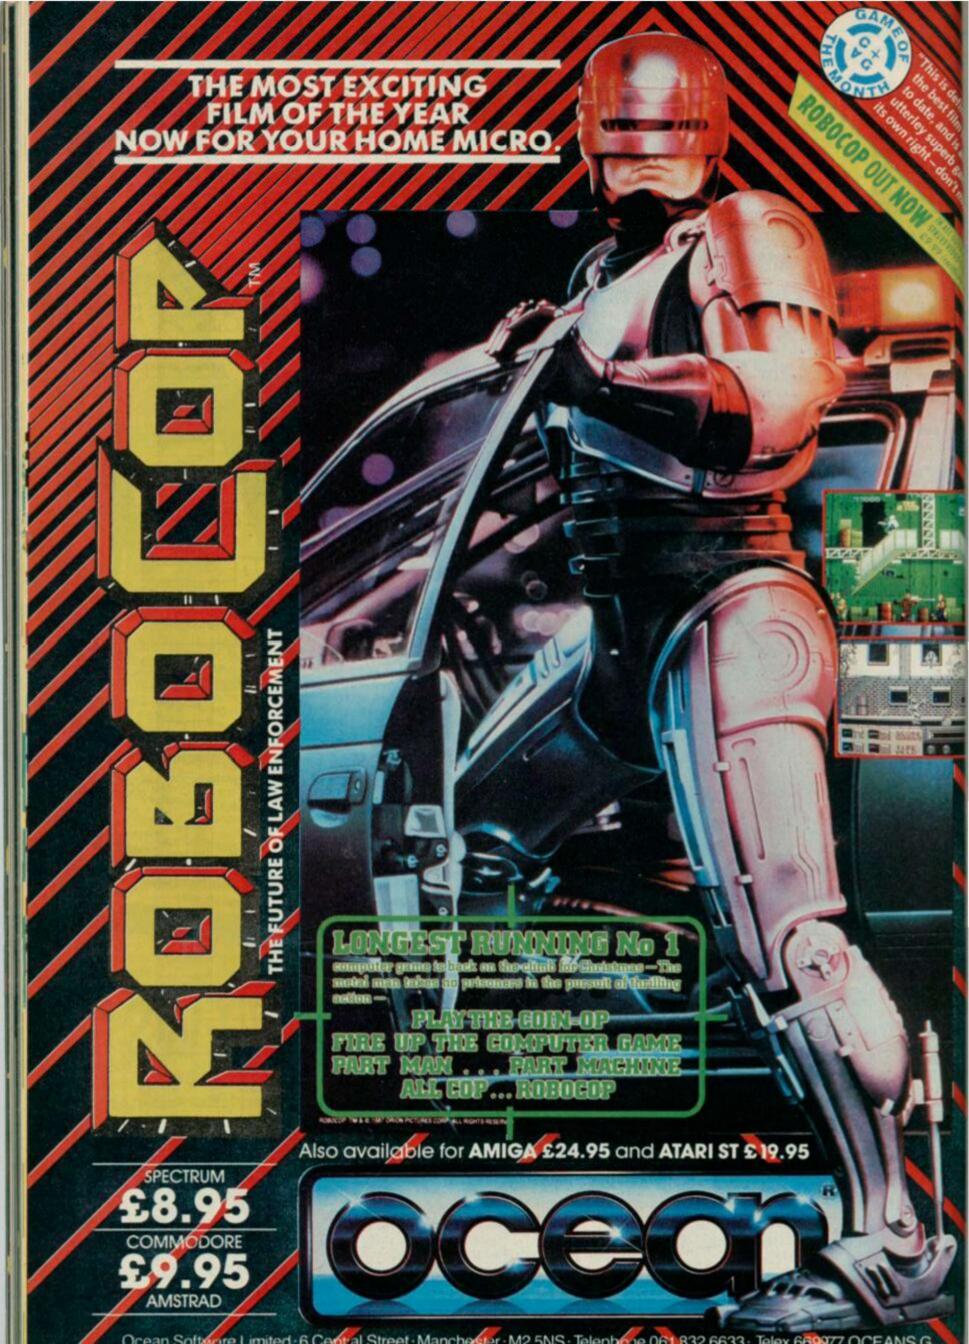

Overall: 78° Convertibility Factor: 8

If you can take the prospect of another racing game on the Speccy, this'd be a fun one to see.

ARCADE NEWS

Of the others we've seen lately we've been particularly impressed by (well, a bit impressed by) Namco's Winning Run(a sort of Hard Drivin' for Formula One cars with the same polygon-filled graphics but faster and smoother running), UN Squadron (three fighter planes, three pilots, and a horde of horizontally scrolling nasties in a Middle East war setting) and Arch Rivals (a comic basketball game from Data East). Oh, and then there's Rastan Saga 2, of course. More of the same platform and ladders slashing mayhem, but faster, smoother and better than the original. Took them a long time to get around to a sequel though, didn't it?

Oooh! Aaow Winsome cool Moonwalker goodies and a wicked

Yamaha electronic keyboard!!

..... Rhinoplasty Code

Michael 'Wacko Jacko' Jackson, eh? What a star he is... At the tender age of five, he was a member of the Jackson Five. He's been singing and dancing most of his life. His best friends are zoo animals. His second album Thriller sold over 40 million copies worldwide, and Bad is the first album in history to have had five number one singles. He sleeps in a plastic airtight bubble and talks like Mickey Mouse. The President of the United States gave him an award for his many amazing achievements. He wears a great deal of mascara, and one glove. Beneath his cool outfits he sports a pair of those very nasty nylon briefs with a picture of a half-eaten apple on the front. (Are you sure about all these 'facts'? Ed) He starred in his own movie Moonw and is now in the computer game of the same name, er, Moonwalker! And it's going to be 'bad'!! (Which means 'very good' in Michael Jackson speak.)

Yep, US Gold has got itself the rights to the Michael Jackson movie and the Birmingham-based software house is sure to exploit all its exciting bits for the computer game! Hurray! And guess what, they're so chuffed about it, they're offering us some splendid prizes in this, the Your Sinclair/US Gold Moonwalker compo!!

I'm Baaaaaaaaad!... But The Prizes Are Splendid!

Yep, do you fancy following Jacko's giddy rise to stardom? Well, here's your chance! First prize is a splendid Yamaha electronic keyboard! It's got 61 keys, stereo speakers, 100 digital voices, digital synth, five track memory, 100 different rhythms, and even drum pads!! It works off mains or batteries (not included, fact fans) so you can take it anywhere to create and play the mega hit records that will launch you on the road to international pop superstardom!! Ah! Ah! AH! And that's not ail! Yep, 'cos 20 runners up in this fab compo get splendid Moonwalker goody bags containing a tremendous T-shirt, a porky poster, a brilliant book, and a corking copy of the computer game!!

Whatcha Gotta Do!? Ooh!

It's a snip! (In more ways than one!!) We all know that Michael's boat race has undergone a great many changes since his Jackson Five days, and a lot of his hard-earned cash has gone into the pockets of top plastic surgeons. So here's your chance to show just how well you know Wacko! Imagine you're Michael Jackson's plastic surgeon. Study the several facial 'bits' pictured here - four different mouths, noses and eyes. Using your skill and judgement, your task is to rebuild the Jacko face on the coupon! If you think the correct eyes are 'A', then jot an 'A' in the eye space on the coupon! Got that? Right, when you've got all the bits in the right place, fill in your name and address, transplant the whole lot into an envelope, and send it to Ben, Although You Scamper Here And There, I Like You Lots 'Cos My Best Friends Are Zoo Animals Compo, YS, PO Box 1509, Enfield, Middlesex EN1 1LQ. Closing date is New Year's Eve.

COMPO WINNERS!

Greetings, pop pickers! Or should that be 'correct answer' winners? Oh ho ho! Yes indeedy, it's another lucky winners compo page, perhaps the most religiously read page of the whole mag. So, magnifying glasses at the ready, let's kick off with...

Snorkles And Chortles!

Allo, mai leetle shep mahtes! Eeet is moi, Jacques Cousteau, 'ere, wiz ze prize weeners of ze amazin' Allo Sailur, Is Zat A Banana Een Your Wet Suit? Compo from wahy back een March! Ze soon-to-be-joining-moi-on-mah-undersea-adventures frog person, ees...

Richard Hammond from Colindale in North Landon.

Ze 25 runners erp, who 'ave wern a copy of ze brilliant Navy Moves from Dinameec, are...

M C Clarke from Walsall in Statts; Alexander Henderson from Buckie in Bantishire, Jonathan Holgate from Stockport in Cheshire; Richard Jones from Prestwick, Manchester; David Starrar from West Lothian, A I Green from Glenrothes in File; David Monticelli from London; Stanon Fryer from Benfleet in Essex; D P Taylor from Kirkby Stephen in Cumbria; Chani Tough from Aboyne in Aberdeenshire; Barry Vidler from Rainhain in Kent; Jonathan Talbot from Ipswich; Glanni Alfano from Buckhurst Hill in Essex; Alex Fisher from Manchester; David Swanson from Sedgefield, County Durham (Stattie cake, yum yumi Ed); Dennis Bassindale from Torpoint in Cornwall; Simon Llewellyn from Newton Le Willows in Merseyside; Lee Hutchinson from Gosforth near Leeds; Michael Felisberto from London; M Harris from Croydon; Steven Stark from Bishops Stortford, Herts; Christian Forsman from Blackpool, Lancs; Susan Kelly from Girvan, Ayrshire; Dave Harris from Peterborough; and J K Marston from Wimborne in Dorset.

Bill Giles Is A Dreamboat!

Did you miss the cool boat for our fabulous What A Stormer Compo back in March? You didn't? Good! Now stand by to see if you're one of the lucky ones below! Right, the winner of the Casio 'pocket TV was...

Gary Sheridan from Glosgow.

The winners of the second place 'John Kettley' record and Hewson's Stormlord were...

Malcolm Mackenzie from Bury, Dave Harris from Peterborough; Craig Mortimer from Liverpool; John Benton from Warrington; Anthony Boyce from Blandford in Docset; Kevin G Davies from Warrington; M A Mcgee from Dudley, West Midlands; Mrs M Hawkins from Blackpool; P Frankland from Famborough in Hampshire; and Deborah Beatty from Landon.

And copies of Stormlard go to these 15 runners up...

R M Went from Milton Keynes: Richard Davies from Haverfordwest in Dyfed; Michael Lisle from sunny Barmouth, North Wales; Steven Boow from Runcorn, Cheshire, Arran Davies from Cwmbran in Gwent; Paul Jones from Thoriset, near Stockport; Neil Jolly from Towcester, Northants; David Hails from Henley on Thames, Oxfordshire; Gary Saxton from Southend, Essex; Christopher Pearcey from Huddersfield, West Yorks; Michael Cooke from Doncoster. South Yorkshire; Jonathan Talbot from Ipswich, in Suffolk; Steven Whitley from Stockton on Tees; Angie Norton from Coventry; and Tim McArdle also from Stockton, in Cleveland.

Metal Muthas!!

Remember our Kraang, Kraang, I've Been Shaking My Head Around So Much My Brain's Gone All Wibbly Compo back in March? Well, I'm gonna lay the winners on ya!! Winner of the spiffy 'axe' was...

Matthew Hodgson from Workington in Cumbria.

Two second prizes of heavy metal (or... er... plastic as the case may be) remote control tanks, go to...

Alistair Croomer who lives on Davey Lane (if sez 'ere!) in Alderley Edge, Cheshire; and Ian Forshaw from Eccleston in Lancashire.

Runners up are all eligible for a copy of US Gold's Heavy Metal, and they are...

Nigel Siddal from Sheffield; Alistair May from Elgin in Scotland; Paul Wright from Cambridge; Ashley Perkins from Sittingbourne in Kent; Malcolm Gair from Fort William; R M Went from Milton Keynes; R N Smith from Sheffield; Brenden Riley from Walsoll, West Midlands; Darren Shaw from Port St Mary on the Isle Of Man; and David Lievense from Belfast.

Eat Paint, Johnny Perp!

April was around the time the YS team ventured into the Combat Zone! It was also the time we ran our Cor Blimey, This Sniper Lark Is Pretty Nerve-Racking Compo. Well, the lucky winners of the five pairs of Combat Zone tickets are...

Philip Jeffrey from Middlesborough; Richard Baker from York; James Wilson from Combridge; Richard Elliott from Angus; and Mark Crump from Caergwrie in Clwyd.

And the runner up copies of Vigilante go to...

Rebeccah Warrow from Allhallows in Kent; Marthew McColley from Newtown, Powys; Titus Patrick from London; Steven Lounds from Eastwood, Nottingham; Adrian Cobbin from Ripon, North Yorkshire; James Kelly from North Cornelly, Mid Glamorgan; Colin Düggen from Glasgow; Daniel Marsh from Odiham, Cheshire; Stephen Legg from Bridport, Dorset; Richard Wilson from Scarborough; J Pink from North Fleetwood, Lancashire; Andrew Jones from Brierly Hill, West Midlands; Andrew Ollett from Brough; Paul Redding from Basildon, Essex; and P J Cowley from Nuneaton, Warwickshire.

Ooooh! You Put The Willies Right Up. Me!!

OOOEErrrrr! Watch out for the ghoulies! Activision helped us out with this creepy compo back in April and... Spoook! Here come the really weird winners of the Real Ghostbusters skateboards!

Whhhiiizzzzt There goes Tim Goodwin from Evertiam in Worcester, and (trundle trundle) here comes D Gibbons from Brookhouse in Lancashire.

And ten blood cardling baggy T-shirts will be floating mysteriously to the following fearsome fellows!

James Wilson from Cambridge: Tim Herbert from Banbury,
Oxfordshire; Adrian Cobbin from Ripon, North Yorkshire; James
Arnold from Jamworth, Staffordshire; H.A. Tang from London; Brian Hughes from West Lothian; Steven Watkins from Nuneaton, Warwickshire; Philip Latham from Sutton Coldfield, West Midlands;
Simon Hooper from Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire; and Owen
Little (Bet you're glad your surname isn't Lots! Ed) from Hornsey, London.

Lastly and slightly leastly, creepy cocoa receptacles have been awarded to the following runners up...

Daniel Street from Bedford; Andrew Davies from Doncaster; Stefan Dawson from Minster in Kent; David Nunn from Reading; and Gordon Elliott from Portadown, Northern Ireland.

And that's your lot! For the meantime anyway. Be sure to tune in next month when, who knows, you might even end up with a few pre-Chrimbo megaprezzies. We're too good to you, we really are.

THE DUEL

TEGE DRIVE

Accolade/Σ9.99 cass/Σ16.99 disk

Matt Racing games, eh? (As our Jack would start a review.) What'd we do without 'em? Well, we'd buy a lot fewer games this Christmas, that's for sure. Yup, from Chase HQ to Power Drift to Continental Circus, everyone's gone car bloomin' crazy!

There are some more serious driving simulations bouncing about too. The jury's still out on Hard Drivin', but here comes The Duel, Accolade's follow up to the mega-successful PC/16 bit driverama Test Drive. In fact, it's quite heart warming to see a respectable, simulation-based outfit like Accolade dipping its toes into the Speccy market this late in the day. So it's a real shame I can't bring myself to write anything very nice about the results. Because, to be honest, Test Drive II smacks a bit of old tosh.

Oh sure, the blurb promises something a bit special. 'Race head to head in the fastest production cars ever built!' Wow! A choice between a Ferrari F40 and a Porsche 959! Road hazards like 'oncoming traffic, rocks, loose gravel, pot holes and oil slicks.' Hot diggerty-dog! Can't wait, right?

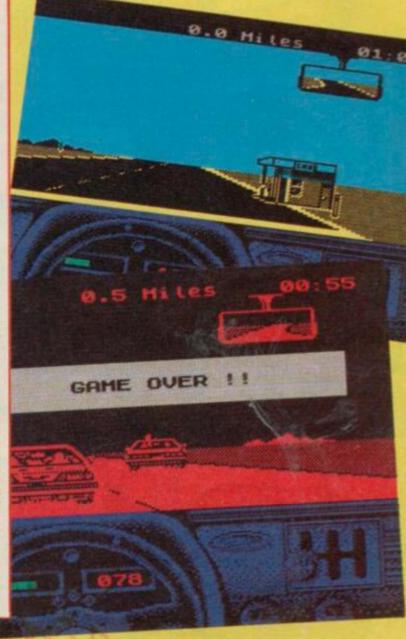

But oh dear, oh dear Well, let's kick off with the graphics. They're just so lifeless! Take the courses. (No, please, take them!) In general they're some of the most flat and featureless routes I've ever seen, be they desert, cliff paths or grasslands, with the very minimum of roadside features (outside of the odd cactus). And the cars are no better. The dark blue dashboards are modelled on the cars in question but, in fact, both look far more like the plasticy job from a Nissan Sunny or something. And what are the roads populated with? Not trucks or Beetles or Corvettes or anything else vaguely interesting, but more blooming three box saloons! Even when you're racing the other supercar the graphic used is just that of another Nissan. In short, you'll have to use your imagination a bit here!

Thankfully, the control system is considerably better. You're given a wide range of skill options l've crashed but there's nothing near me! I nearly came over all indignant for a second, but then I realised Test Drive II has an additional feature – the invisible car! Silly me. And I thought it must be because the collision detection is crap.

Even when you manage to do something right you get little reward for it. Here comes a petrol station. I've got to park between two lines painted across the road.

Oops! I've gone too fast and overshot—the car immediately runs out of petrol and the game ends. If I stop correctly, wallop, the screen goes blank and I appear on the second course.

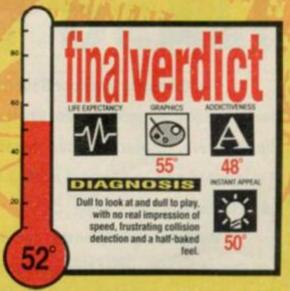

from easy to really hard, the first four of which use an automatic gearbox, with the more difficult ones on manual. Actually, there's not much point in playing it on auto at all (too little to do) but on manual things warm up a bit. In fact, they warm up a trifle too much — fail to change up in time and your engine explodes! Yikes! But — and it's a very big 'but' — even at the simplest level your motor is damn near uncontrollable. To even stay on the road (staying in lane is pretty impossible) takes a million tiny corrections. So it's totally unlike 'real life'.

These are, however, but petty crimes compared to the two main holes in the thing. For a start there is no real impression of speed — not even a little bit! Unless you've got your eyes pinned to the speedometer, it's near impossible to tell how fast you're meant to be going. The clock will climb from about 15 to 105 mph in seconds and suddenly you'll be going too fast to take a corner — though it sure doesn't 'feel' like it. Again, totally unlike the experience of driving a real car, where you only need to check out the speedo occasionally.

And then there's the collision detection. It's hopeless. You'll crash into a cactus when it looks like it's, ooh, a good 20 feet away. Apparently the computer judges whether you'd hit it or not within the next frame of animation or something and freezes you there, which leaves the offending object sitting there smugly, miles from your bonnet. How frustrating.

And that's it really. I keep going back to the game, thinking it can't be that bad. Maybe I've just been unfair. Maybe, once you get into it, after you've got used to all the frustrating peculiarities and learned just how far from the other cars you need to be, it all comes to life and becomes playable. After all, the 16 bit Test Drive took a bit of getting used to. But I doubt it. If you're buying a racing game this Christmas there must be at least seven better ways to spend your cash.

Rainbow Arts/£8.99 cass/£12.99 disk

Davey Are you fatigued by fatuous fighting games? Shattered by all those mindless shoot-'em-ups? Ooh no, missus! Well, don't get hispherical! (Groan! Ed) 'Cos here, for a refreshing change, is one of those games that places its emphasis more on the ol' grey matter between your ears than the red button on the end of your joystick. Yep, it's Spherical!

It's big, it's colourful, it's got lots of little wobbly bits, it's from German software house Rainbow Arts and it's been programmed by Probe Software, the guys behind Firebird's Mr Heli. It's also similar to Repton Mania, which Marcus rated a hot 88° in our June issue, but, whereas that game boasted its cutsie croc in casual wear, Spherical leans more towards the Gauntlet-type scenario and characters.

Basically, you play this sort of wizard chap. You and a friend have ventured into this castle when Basically, you play this sort of wizard chap. You and a friend have ventured into this castle when suddenly, FULATCH!, your chum gets turned into a sphere! Blimey! A hasty exit is recommended, but things aren't quite that simple 'cos you have to clear the way for your rotund amigo to roll clear of the traps and pitfalls between you and the exit!

Your wizardly powers enable you to add or

Your wizardly powers enable you to add or subtract bricks and you can also collect various icons, including good and bad potions, gems and even a Strider-type droid thing that circles your sprite and kills the monsters! There are 80 (!) levels in all, each comprising a single screen of increasing complexity, not to mention a secret extra ten levels which you can access via a codeword received from other icons! If you choose the two player game, then you won't recognise it, 'cos guess what!? There are only 80 completely new levels in that mode too! And, true to form, these are cunningly designed so that they can only be completed by both players co-operating! (I knew all those mornings spent watching Sesame Street would come in handy one day!) Sometimes you have to get the sphere to the exit, other times you have to kill a monster. These can be huge, and explode quite nicely when bashed over the bonce several times by the aforementioned droid!

But what you're really going to need here is quick thinking! At the start of a level you have 20 seconds before the sphere starts rolling. The first thing you must do is to ensure that the sphere is safe. If you're at the bottom of the screen, and the ball is poised

ICONOGRAPHY

Here are some of the icons you'll come across, and what they do for you!

SMART POTION
This, in the modern vernacular, is what we'd call a smart bomb, so,
er, basically it performs the same function.
Collect it by moving over the icon. Use it by pressing 'nine'
on the keyboard.

EXTRA ENERGY You'll have to guess what this one does 'cos I'm keeping mum!

SPARKLER This baby gives you the Strider-type droid. It circles you and wipes out any baddies it touches. But remember, all good things must come to an end! (There's a time limit!)

POISON Touch this at your peril! It'll take away your brickbuilding ability.

FREEZE POTION This freezes most of the moving nasties, but be careful not to freeze any baddies which block your route!

LAMP This icon will give your character immunity from all those energy zapping thingles!

PARCHMENT This gives you longer and slower jumps.

looks a bit like it!
Anyway, this transports you
to a warp level!
These are well
tricky, but complete one and you'll be moved on several levels as a reward!

FA CUP Well, it

DOOR AND KEY Get key icon and the doors of the same colour will disappear.

WAND Hurrah!
No probs if you get one of these
on your screen,
'cos it'll get you
straight on to the next level!

HOURGLASS
You know I said that the sphere
starts rolling after 20 seconds? Well, get his icon and it won't! It'll take a bit longer!

over a trap at the top, then some bloomin' nifty block-building is required el pronto! (Fortunately, there's an option for you to practice this!) As the levels progress, there are bigger monsters and more complicated problems to pit your wits against. You'll get skull-shaped doors that need to be removed by collecting the appropriate coloured key icon, and all manner of energy-zapping creatures to impede your passage. (Oo-erl Ed) You've got a long way to go and absolutely yonks of puzzling gameplay ahead of you. And with the very different two player interactive option it's like two games for the price of one, er, too, so you'll get your money's worth and no mistake!

And that, in a nutshell, is that! A wizard game about wizards, balls, monster squashing (or blocking) and problem solving. If your mind is getting jealous of all the exercise your trigger finger is getting, then check out Spherical!

THE STORY SO FAR VOLUME 4

Elite/£12.99 cass

Rich Hmmph. Now that Elite isn't releasing any new games, it seems as if it's decided to re-release as many old ones as possible on various compilations. And here we are — six utterly ancient games in one complete pack. Bargain or what?

Personally, I think not.

Wonderboy

This is actually the best of the bunch. You are Wonderboy and your girlfriend seems to have been kidnapped by an evil king. So off you must go through seven monochrome, multiload, horizontally scrolling landscapes to rescue her, jumping over various deadly nasties, such as snails, and picking up vital life-saving equipment like bananas. But the action doesn't stop there. Oh ho no! Magic eggs can also be collected, giving you special weapons like a gun. And though the scrolling may be a bit jerky there's still a lot of fun left in this old nugget. It's the best game in the pack, and, blow me down with a feather, if it's not on this month's YS Smash Tape too. Blimey!

'89 Rating: 85"

Back To The Future

A total waste of tape. You are Marty McFly and you've been whisked back to 1955 where you need to get your parents to fall in love. You do this by zooming around on your skateboard, playing the guitar a bit and reading a few love poems via lots of icons at the top.

Gripping stuff, eh? '89 Rating: 30"

Quartel

Wonder if this is any good? Well, it's not too bad. Then again, it's not too good either. But I suppose... (Get on with it! Ed) You and your chum fly along this horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up, killing baddies and defeating an end-of-level nasty to get a key so that you can get on to one of the next 99 levels. Lots of mega-weapons and bonuses can be picked up throughout, naturellement, to help you on your way.

I suppose in 1986 when this was first released it seemed quite good. But now, boy has it aged. Compared to today's hits, like Forgotten Worlds, it seems jerky, colourless and really rather uninteresting. Sorry, but I didn't really like it. Next...
'89 Rating: 50"

Alien

You've seen the film, you've read the book and you've pickled the onion — so now play the game. Or don't as the case may be.

It's got fancy 'first person perspective' graphics — but playability? I was bored before it'd even loaded. You switch control between six crew members who walk around this base on some deserted planet, and you must try to get each person to this chamber where they'll be safe.

Just avoid the alien and that's it! Lumme. '89 Rating: 40"

The Eidolon

This one's pretty weird. The instructions make no sense whatsoever (perhaps because I was reading the French ones), but basically you wander around these 3D caves shooting fireballs at goblins and collecting jewels. Collect them in the right order then you can kill the end-of-level dragon and go on to the next boring level. Groan.

I'd forget this one completely if I were you...
'89 Rating: 35"

Ghostbusters

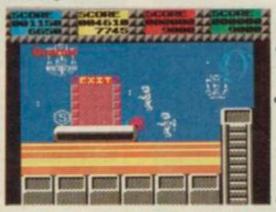

Blimey! This one's so old you could fry an egg on it. 1984, I believe. 'Tis quite a simple game. Buy a car, equip it with as many hoovers and toasters as possible (to catch the ghosts), then drive around busting all the ghosts. Once a ghost-infected building has been located, you can drive to it with an overhead view of your car sucking up spookies on the way. Once you're there then it's just a matter of dropping a trap and, with some careful manoeuvring of your gun (parp), catching the blighter.

Continue this, make enough money 'til you can afford to battle old Marshmally himself, and voilà. Hmmm. It may be old, but if you can fight your way through the dinosaurs then it's not that bad. '89 Rating: 60"

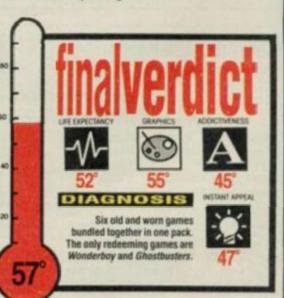

See that slimer? Well, if you can get him between the two lines of fire then you can activate the trap which'll hold him forever.

Well, there you go. Not really very good, is it? In fact, I'll go as far as to say that it's almost a total disaster. Apart from Wonderboy and Ghostbusters none of the games are really worth having at all. Sorry, but you'd be better flushing your money down the loo than spending it on this.

"A rolling stone is worth two in the bush", as they say — and this is no exception. Shoot that big thing to your left to get the key which'll get you on to the next level (hurrah).

Ghostbusters II Activision

Ghostbusters! (The game, not the film.) It sold like hot cakes! Apparently Activision shifted two million of the blooming things, which certainly set a few records, and leaves it with something to aim for this year. Because, yes, it's Ghostbusters time again, with the new movie and the Speccy conversion due for simultaneous release at the start of December.

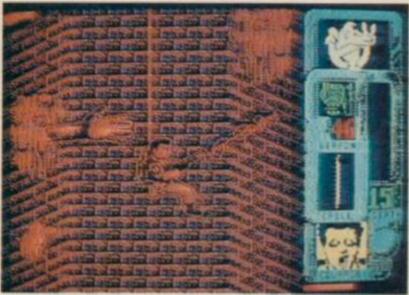

FoursField has done the programming, working from storyboards of the film rather than the actual

Trivia

Shades

What's this all about then? A new label called Shades? Well, no actually. It's simply a new publishing label from one of our favourite software houses, Grandslam. And Trivia is to be its first release.

Based on the ol' pub-style trivia quizzes (y'know, those slot machines that you bung loads of dosh into just so you can get asked stupid questions like what is the gestation period of a pig), Trivia is a one player game in which you have to

thing (because it hadn't actually been finished when it started). It's divided into three main sections — the 'Van Horne' sequence, in which Dan Aykroyd is lowered down into a pit answer loads of stupid trivia questions (like what is the gestation period of a pig) against the clock, and for free! (Well, alright then. £6.99 actually.) Questions are based on those hoary old subjects, art, literature, leisure, sport and entertainment, so all you have to do is swot up on your Encyclopedia Britannica and get going.

Trivia will be in your shops as you read this, priced at £6.99 on cassette and £9.99 on disk. Check it out, it'll save you spending pounds down the pub.

to collect a sample of slime, the 'Statue of Liberty' bit where the famous statue comes to life, and the final battle against the evil Vigo. We'll have a full review next issue.

Fighting Socco

Fighting Soccer Activision

Yikes! This sounds a bit dodgy (more to do with terrace hooliganism than footie itself!) but Activision assures us there's not a spot of violence in the whole thing! It's all down to arcade set-up SNK, which just chose a rather bizarre name for its soccer coin-op earlier in the year — so now Activision is stuck with it. The boot-'em-up action is of the overhead view sort, and is based on an 11 team Olympic Challenge rather than professional football. Watch out for it very soon at £9.99.

Kivy

SCHOOL NOT THE OF HEDG

Toposoftl It's a Spanish companyl It produces budget games! And it's rather good! You may remember Blackbeard, Colosseum and Titanic from relatively recently. Well, now Kixx is releasing a compilation of nine of its games, including the three just mentioned, for a not-to-be-sniffed-at £9.99 (£14.99 disk). There's a pinball game in there, racing games, shoot-'em-ups, beat-'em-ups... It's got the lot! Look out for it very, very soon!

Fallen Angel

Fallen Ange

Screen 7

This is Screen 7's latest offering — a horizontal beat-'em-up with a twist. And what's the twist? Well, only that it's set in a series of different underground train systems around the world, that's all! Quite how they'll come up with a watertight plot to hold that little lot together we can't imagine but the London Tube, Paris Metro and New York Subway backdrops should be fun. Anyway, it's due out in November.

Bob

Infogrames

Oo la lal Theeze crazy French!! They certainly know their onions when it comes to converting wacky gallic cartoon characters! We're sure Tintin (who everyone's heard of) will be a big hit, but who on earth (well, in England) has ever heard of Bobo? No one in this office, sure as oeufs is oeufs!

Anyway, Bobo is a European comic character, a prisoner who's always trying to escape from jail, but who's so useless he never quite makes it. The game is an episodic little number, with some boring sounding but, we're assured, quite interesting tasks to perform. For instance, in one, Bobo is the food

Bobo

Turbo OutRun

US Gold

what a sneaky bunch, US Gold eh? They kept mum for ages and ages about what their Christmas biggie was going to be - but now they've (officially) announced it, and blow us all down if it isn't another racing game! The follow-up to the great grand-daddy of all racing games in fact. It's Turbo OutRun! (What a surprise.) You drive a Ferrari again of course (this time a so-rareit-doesn't-octually-exist open-topped F40) in a four stage road race across America. You battle with Porsches, police cars and other road users through deserty bits, snowy bits (you can choose special tyres if need be) and so on, with some pretty nifty night sequences promised too. A limited number of turbo-boosts (à la Chase HQ) and a choice of manual and auto gearboxes keep things moving apace. The whole extravaganza — on 48 and 128K — will be available sometime in November or early December.

monitor of a lunch hall. Trouble is there are too many fellow convicts to serve, so everything collapses into choos. Another has him spudbashing, but there are too many potatoes so everything collapses into chaos. Then there's the mopping-theprison-floor bit, but everyone keeps walking all over the nice wet lino, so everything collapses into chaos. Eventually, Bobo succeeds in escaping (hurrah!), but now he's got to get away by running along the top of electric train cables (a neat trick if you can do it) without getting fried by the pulsating current! (Yikes!) Bobo sounds definitely weird, possibly quite spanky and will hopefully be out by Christmas! Sacre

Empire

Thwip! (That's a Spiderman web line noise.) Sptangl (That's a Captain America shield noise.) Zapowl (That's a general, all-purpose superhero noise.) Yep, not only is the evil Doctor back, he's brought his two superhero chums tool Dr Doom's Revenge is an interactive adventure, comic booky in style, with each 'page' showing Cap and Spidey progressing through Doom's castle towards the great man himself. Along the way the web slinger and the 'star spangled champion of justice' (we just made that one up) must fight Doom's evil pals, such as his electric-bolt-firing chum Electro, chubby chum Rhino, chopping chum Machete and his, erm, other chum Hob Goblin. There are 30 arcade sequences, various difficulty levels, and it comes with loads and loads of authentic Marvel comic paraphernalia, including a free comic, a detailed manual with character biographies and all sorts. At £9.99/£14.99, it looks like Empire could be on to a winner here.

Tintin On The Moon Infogrames

Thundering typhoons and blistering barnacles! Tintin, the most famous junior reporter the world has ever known, is about to hit our Speccies courtesy of French software house Infogrames.

Yup, ol' Tintin, he of the pale blue jumpers, fetching plus-fours, cute cow lick and 60th, yes 60th, birthday, will be featuring on our Speccies next month, complete with chums Snowy, Captain Haddock, Professor Calculus and The Thompson Twins.

Based on Hergé's

comic book of the same name, Tintin On The Moon takes the form of an arcade adventure in which Tintin and chums blast off in a space rocket and attempt to make the first landing on the moon. Before they can reach their destination though they first have to steer their rocket through an arcadey asteroid section as well as put out fires started by saboteurs in a platform and laddery section.

Tintin On The Moon will be blasting off from its launch pad any minute now. Watch out for a full review next issue. Five... four... three...two...

Pictionary

Domark

It's just as well a picture paints a thousand words 'cos in Pictionary, the next release on offer from Domark, painting words is the name of the game.

This is the latest game craze sweeping America. It takes the form of a board game that's played in a similar way to charades - only instead of acting out a word or title, you and your chums must guess the various words by sketching out clues for each other! Oh, ho, ho, you're thinking - we can't do that on our Speccies, not without a special grafix package at any rate. So what's the point of converting it when we can play it ourselves with pen and paper1? Because, Spec-chums, Domark has incorporated an innovative grafix package into the conversion, so not only do you get to play the game on computer, but also to draw on computer too using solid, broken and dotted lines, rectangles, circles, elipses and any number of fill patterns to boot.

Pictionary promises to be a hoot by the look of things especially if you're a bit crap at drawing. Watch out for it, it should be ready for your palette now.

Pictionary

Risk

Virgin

You must've played Risk in its traditional form (as a board game) before now. It's the one in which you've got a big map of the world and have to try taking over the entire place building armies, fortifying defences and trying to outfax you opponents. So yes, you'd be right in thinking there is a fair amount of strategy involved. Anyway, the computer version allows you to play against the computer or up to five friends, includes large scrolling maps and a gamesave facility. Available on the Leisure Genius label at £9.95 cassette, £14.95 disk in November, it would make the ideal Christmas present. (That's what they told us to say, anyway.)
